Ford, Reagan, Carter Strike Common Chord: Enthusiasm Lacking for All of Them Here

The question asked was simple enough: Which of the three remaining Presidential hopefuls would you like to see elected to the White House--Carter? Reagan? Ford? But it might have been even simpler, judging from the replies to TOWN TOPICS' informal man and woman on the street interviews, if the question had been phrased the other way around: Who DON'T you want to see elected to the White House?

Drawing conclusions from even the most scientific of polls can sometimes be a risky business, as Princeton resident George Gallup probably would confirm. The poll here consisted of nothing more than button-holing people on the street.

Nevertheless, one conclusion seems inescapable: The political mood today seems to be one of little enthusiasm for any candidate; the conclusions reached in June seem tenuous, at best. "You mean I have to pick one of those three?" was the initial reaction of several respondents. "Well, of those three..." was a preamble to many responses.

For many of those button-holed by TOWN TOPICS, the question "why" was answered as if it were "why not?"

This "why not?" attitude appeared to benefit most Jimmy Carter, the former Georgia governor. "I don't really like any of them," declared Mrs. R.M. Eysler of 43 Palmer Square. "But I think Jimmy Carter, because I don't see anyone else winning."

People seemed to be backing into their decisions. Mike Prosetti, a painter for Julius H. Gross, Inc. of Rosedale Road, reasoned this way: "I don't like Reagan. He paid $2,200 in income tax. Heck, my wife and I paid more than that."

"Ford was never elected. I don't like the Nixon administration and Ford was hand-picked by Nixon. I just read 'All the President's Men' and that really opened my eyes to the Nixon administration."

"I think Carter will do better than Ford. He isn't going to veto all those work bills. I think he'll get this country on the move again and off the unemployment rolls."

Mark Jacox, of 46 Wiggins Street, an administrator at the Forrestal Lab, said he would "have to go" with Carter. His analysis: "I don't have much respect for Mr. Reagan's ability to handle anything larger than a Hollywood set of the State of California. I don't think Ford is sharp enough, he doesn't give me a warm glow. I think he'll be in trouble if he stays too long."

Rodney Caldwell, of 13 Glenview Drive, West Windsor, a turbine tester, added. "Ford is definitely out! He walked into the White House. Reagan is a runner-up. I don't know if he's for the people. I watched him on a talk show and he's kind of right hand and left hand. Carter is the only one the people seem to like. I would

Democrats Seek to Unify Party Factions In Wake of Harsh Criticism by Ms. Schneider

Princeton Democrats are putting on a unified-if not wholly convincing-face following last week's verbal gunfire from Councilwoman Janice Schneider. On the occasion of her defeat as a Democratic municipal committeeman and her decision to decline to run for the chairmanship of that committee, Mrs. Schneider voiced harsh criticism of the Princeton Community Democratic Organization, a reform political club which she helped organize in 1968.

This week Democrats affiliated with that club were saying Mrs. Schneider's criticism represented not a divisive battle within the party but simply the bitter course of action taken by one individual. These Democrats pointed out that already under the new leadership of Mrs. Dorothy Soper, elected municipal chairman last week, the municipal committee and the PCDO show signs of unprecedented cooperation.

That observation may be correct. But other Democrats predicted that new battle lines could be drawn up - this time with the Democratic majority on Borough Council, on which Mrs. Schneider will sit until November, squared off against the municipal committee and the PCDO.

The first potential firestorm: Naming of a successor to the late Councilman Murray Medvin. Several councilmen are believed to be leaning toward the appointment of Marvin Trotman, who lost a close primary election to recent Princeton High School graduate David Male and who then lost a recount of the votes taken earlier this week. (Mr. Trotman was reported considering an attempt to challenge several absentee ballots.)

Council makes that decision. But the municipal committee has the power to name the candidate on the ballot in November to fill the remainder of Mr. Medvin's term. The possibility seemed fairly high that Council could appoint Mr. Trotman when it convenes in July, only to have the committee select another person to run in November.

No 'Stampede'. The politically pragmatic course of action would be to appoint in July the same person who would be nominated for November. Councilman Gus Escher said that, despite the fears of some people, "there hasn't been a stampede toward one person-not even among Council." He added: "There's a real difference between healthy squabbling in June and pulling together for the November elections. We need to pull together."

PCDO Democrats also were speaking of unity. "Division in the Democratic Party was the story a month ago," said Frederick Bohlen, president of the PCDO and unsuccessful candidate for Congress two years ago. "Since then the Democrats have been relieved of their divisive influence."

He was referring, of course, to Mrs. Schneider. "Our main problem was a personality, not a movement," said Mr. Bohlen. "The story now is that a new set of personalities are moving us beyond that history, which we all regret. The mood of the Democrats is to pull together."

Mr. Bohlen spoke optimistically of the future of the municipal committee and of cooperation between the committee and the PCDO. "As long as Jan Schneider was chairman and pretended to speak for the committee and suggested that the committee and Council were lined up, then the PCDO was the villain. Now the committee can no longer be assumed to be supportive of everything the Council decides. It has a new chairman with a new agenda and her own way of doing things. They will exert a different pressure on the Council."

Committee More Active? Under Mrs. Schneider's chairmanship, Mr. Bohlen maintained, the municipal committee hardly ever met to reorganize itself after the primaries. "We'd meet only to re-elect her chairman," said Mr. Bohlen.

Mrs. Soper, who held a planning session with her committee Tuesday night, said that items on the agenda include registration; the appointment to Council; review of the committee's by-laws; and consideration of candidates for Council in November. "I'm very anxious to reflect the opinion of the committee," said Mr. Soper, declining to comment further on what actions it might take.

John Huntoon, who along with his wife defeated Mrs. Schneider and her husband, Joseph Stonaker, for spots on the municipal committee, said that one action he would like to see the municipal committee take is "encouraging membership in the PCDO." He acknowledged that "there are people on Council who have had questions about the representativeness and democratic nature-small of the PCDO."

But Mr. Huntoon argued that the club is "certainly not a group of limousine liberals." Membership fees are $4 per person and $7 for a family. He said that at a recent dinner dance several hundred people showed up, at the democratic price of $5 apiece.

Changing Cast. "I've begun to see some changes," Mr. Huntoon said of the negative view of the PCDO taken by some Councilmen. "These views are not written in stone."

If the Council's views do not change, Council itself might. Mr. Bohlen pointed out that "Council has a weak hand" in selecting a replacement for Mr. Medvin since the committee has the power to name the candidate on the ballot in November.

While Council may be favoring the appointment of Mr. Trotman, other names are being mentioned, and the feelings of the committee seem strong that all should be considered. One of those is Mrs. Leona Medvin, Murray's widow, who has been asked by several of her friends if she would be interested in filling the remaining portion of her husband's term. "She's been touched by the interest," said Mr. Bohlen, "but she indicated she is not yet ready to even consider running for the position."

Mr. Bohlen added that, no matter how the Medvin vacancy is filled, next year's Council will certainly have at least three new faces, since Mrs. Schneider and Joseph Moore have indicated they will not seek re-election. Mr. Bohlen hopes the new councilmen will all be Democrats-Democrats who get along with their counterparts on the PCDO and the municipal committee, as well as with each other.

SOME CUTS RESTORED In School Budget. "We feel like we're supposed to feel that we won," said Jim O'Neill, baseball coach at Princeton High School, following Tuesday night's school board meeting in which a previously announced major reduction in funding for athletic teams had been restored to the budget. "But, we're still a little confused."

The meeting, which considered first the matter of budget cut restorations and then the report of the outside consultant hired by the school board to evaluate the system's administrative structure, was as confusing as anyone would imagine in his or her worst nightmares. Residents, including many coaches, high school athletes and former athletes, were packed into the conference room at the Valley Road School.

Board members and administrators alike seemed puzzled by various parts of the financial maneuverings that went on to restore most - if not all - of the funds allocated for go with Carter." Mr. Carter, of course, campaigned partly on what he is not -- a Washington politician -- as well as what he is. But some Princeton area voters apparently need more reason than that to support the man.

Lynn Fremuth, of 46 Wiggins Street, a waitress at the Alchemist and Barrister, normally is a Democratic voter. But this is not a normal year for her: "Between Ford and Carter I don't see where Carter has anything over Ford. Why put a new man in office? I don't see exchanging a weak candidate for a weak president."

"I'd really like to vote for Jerry Brown. I was in California when he was governor and I like the way he cut spending and cut the budget. He's rather austere in all his policies."

Brown, Humphrey Backed. Respondents had a difficult time refraining from wishful thinking about those who now clearly have no chance of winning the nomination.

Dr. Ruth Frank of 945 Stuart Road said her decision would have to wait for the selection of vice-presidents. But, she said, "I still have hopes for Jerry Brown. If Carter wins the nomination I would vote for Ford."

Jack Flynn of Hopewell, a freelance writer, said he was "a disappointed man in the street" since Hubert Humphrey lost any chance of the Democratic nomination. "I guess I'd look into Carter if I become enthusiastic about voting. I wouldn't vote for Ford under any circumstances. Maybe some Midwest housewives might vote for him, but that's about it."

Sallie Johnson, of 160 John Street, said the one person she would really like to see in the White House is not running. Who is that? "Governor Rockefeller." Why? "Because he already has enough money and you could be sure he wouldn't have to steal any."

Sister Cordelia of St. Paul's Church said that, "of the three," and she emphasized the condition, "I guess I would vote for Carter. I also like Reagan, and I'd rather not see Ford." She indicated she might be more enthusiastic four or possibly eight years from now: "I think Jerry Brown will be the next hopeful."

Few Political Reasons. People basing their support on purely political reasons were scarce in this survey. D. Don Richards, of 70 William Street, the radio and television repairman, said he is "leaning toward Reagan because of his proposals on welfare. He'll straighten out that particular thing."

T. Harding Jones, of 25 Palmer Square West, executive director of the Concerned Alumni of Princeton, also supports Reagan: "He's the one person who can deal effectively with the Democratic Congress. He will work to stop the Federal government's encroachment into our private lives and to reverse the trend of appeasement and withdrawal in foreign policy."

James Attenborough of Princeton Junction supports the President for virtually the same reason: "I think Mr. Ford's a good man. He's doing an excellent job against a Democratic Congress that's fighting him tooth and nail."

Supporters of former Governor Carter, in particular, seemed to stress personal qualities in explaining their choice. "He seems to be honest," said Leo F. Briscoe, of Route 27, the shoe shine man at Brophy's. "He's a religious man and I'm somewhat a religious man myself."

'A New Patriotism.' Rob Bonagura, an art student working in Princeton, explained: "One thing I think Carter is selling -- literally selling -- is a new brand of faith. If anything, I'd like to see the American people experience a true faith in their leaders and government. I think a new patriotism would come out of that -- rather than a Bicentennial celebration which is just covering up a lot of things. I think Carter has a faith in himself. I don't know if it is real or not, it's just a product of his own life -- and that's all that matters."

Other respondents provided an overall picture that continued to be conclusively...well, inconclusive. The sampling included:

Chris Brown, 142 Moore Street, Princeton High School senior: "I'd like to see Carter get it. I think his opinions on the issues are the best. Ford would be a better choice than Reagan. There are a lot of things that Reagan is pushing for that I don't like at all."

Jennifer Weiss, Skillman, Princeton Day School student: "I don't like any of them, but of the three I'd pick Carter. He seems most idealistic. Reagan is too conservative and Ford I just don't like."

Mrs. Virginia Sewell, 21 Russell Road: "I haven't really made up my mind. I think Mr. Ford has been trying hard and doing the best he can. I heard Mr. Reagan on taxes this morning. Maybe someone will catch on to his idea and make it work."

Richard K. Paynter, 39 Wilson Road: "If the election were held tomorrow I would vote for Mr. Ford. However, between now and November it may well be Mr. Carter. Under no circumstances would I vote for Mr. Reagan."

David Jacobus, 37 Cleveland Lane, director of research at Merck Drugs: "I think Carter will be elected. I'd rather see Ford; I don't trust Carter, but I'd have to see more of him to know."

Mrs. Charles Crum, 33 Vandewater, housewife: "Carter. I think he's the most intelligent of the three and has better leadership qualities. I think he would unite this country -- at least make an effort."

Strange Saga of Moffat's Absence from Township Committee Ends When He Is Sworn in for New Term at Medical Center

The scene looked like something out of Marcus Welby, but the action was for real in the conference room in the J-Wing of the Princeton Medical Center. Township Committee convened there Monday night to re-elect Abbot Low Moffat to the seat for which he and Republican Tod Peyton fought in last November's contested election.

Casting the affirmative votes for Mr. Moffat were Democrats Jay Bleiman and Margaret Broadwater, and Republican Elizabeth Hutter, who attended the meeting dressed in a bathrobe and sitting in a wheel chair - her right leg elevated and two intravenous feeding bottles suspended from above. Mrs. Hutter has been hospitalized with a leg infection the past several weeks and her absence made a majority vote for Mr. Moffat impossible to obtain at last week's meeting. So this week Committee moved the meeting to her.

Casting the negative vote, as she did last week, was one other Republican on Committee, Josie Hall. After the vote was taken Mrs. Hall explained that her action was based on the decision of the Township Republican committee to appeal the ruling that allowed Mr. Moffat to regain his seat until the next election.

A request for certification was mailed Monday to the Supreme Court, Mrs. Hall said. "Being a member of the group bringing that lawsuit there was no way I could vote for a Democrat."

Voters 'Disenfranchised.' Mrs. Hutter, cradling several folders of Committee work in her lap, said she also deplored the appellate court decision which said that the vacancy should be handled under the provisions of the state's vacancy law. "It disenfranchises the voters and limits the number of people who can be appointed," she said.

"But this is no reflection on Abbot Low Moffat," she continued. "He has a sense of what is good for Princeton as a community."

In the hallway outside the small conference room, the public address system issued urgent calls for physicians; hospital patients wandered up and down the corridors; and one woman walked by in tears, obviously mourning the death of a close friend or relative.

Mr. Moffat also hovered outside. After the vote he was summoned in and sworn into office by Township Attorney Gordon Griffin.

Byzantine Structure. The meeting reconvened at its usual place in Township Hall with more voting and swearing in. Mr. Bleiman, meeting of July 12. Mrs. Hall who had been acting mayor, said that another ordinance became mayor, or chairman prohibiting mopeds from all as the title is officially sidewalks and bicycle paths designated. He then resigned also is likely.

as vice-chairman and Mrs. Broadwater was elected to liquor license for the Rusty that post.

"I wasn't aware you were appointment of William Starr vice-chairman," Mrs. Broadwater said. "I thought Sewerage Authority was you were acting mayor." He approved.

explained that the vice-chairman is the acting mayor. "Isn't that Byzantine," she replied.

With order finally restored to Committee for the first time since the apparent voting machine malfunction last November, regular business resumed.

Committee adopted a resolution praising Royce N. Flippin III for his representation of Princeton in a national track meet last Saturday in Sacramento, Calif. Young Flippin, who finished fourth out of the eight two-milers invited from around the country, took the opportunity to urge townspeople to support extra-curricular sports at the high school.

Starr Appointed. Ordinances to install a traffic light at the corner of North Harrison and Valley Road and to prohibit the operation of mopeds on the sidewalks of the Princeton Shopping Center also were adopted. Public hearings will be held at the

BATTLEFIELD TO OPEN
On Fourth of July. Although the field on which the Battle of Princeton raged was just another quiet glade with a big oak on July 4, 1776, the Battlefield Preservation Society will mark the beginning of the Bicentennial season this July 4 with a tour and open house starting at 2. At that time every bell in Princeton will be ringing as part of a nationwide observance honoring the Bicentennial.

Richard Baker of the Preservation Society said he hoped the Clark House and interpretation center would be open by that time. The terrain model of the battlefield is ready, he said, and a four-minute sound and slide show may also be ready.

The Washington Headquarters flag will fly beneath the American flag at the battlefield on July 4.

athletics and several other school functions. Board members corrected or tried to correct each other over certain interpretations of the proceedings. At various points members of the audience, who pressed in within spitting range of the board, chimed in to the discussion.

When the meeting was over, Mr. O'Neill and the other coaches were confused, but at least close to being happy. Superintendent Philip E. McPherson, on the other hand, seemed less confused, but also less happy. "There are several things about the consultant's report that trouble me," he said. Following the presentation of that report he read a prepared statement urging the recommendations not be followed on the schedule recommended by the consultant.

Pension Fund Cut. The decision to restore the cuts in the athletic budget came only after long discussion of how the money would be obtained and how it would be appropriated through the various schools. The source of the money for all the budget restorations was a payment previously allotted for the teachers' pension fund. That was $194,600, which the board ultimately decided not to include in this year's extra-lean budget.

The real confusion stemmed from the fact that money put back into the budget goes not to the athletic teams directly, but rather to the principals of the schools, who

Going, Going...
My favorite month
is always June.
So long in coming
It ends too soon

With a week to go, June has steered a course pretty close to what might be expected of it—mean temperature and total precipitation are about normal, although it will take something better than a half inch of rain in the remaining days to bring it out even.

Temperature readings are expected to edge a bit higher between now and Sunday, with that 90-degree mark, a strong likelihood for both Friday and Saturday. The tendency on the part of the National Weather Service to report afternoon showers as a possibility is almost a daily occurrence, but they actually develop only about one day in four.

allocate the money as they see fit, but within the constraints set by the board and the superintendent.

When coach O'Neill asked if the restoration would mean that the high school athletic budget would return to last year's level of $42,600, from the proposed $25,000 for next year, he could receive only a qualified yes.

"I know this won't be very popular but I can't say that for sure tonight," replied high school principal George Petrillo. "I've got a lot of other pressures, like the chairman of your department, Jim (social studies), who says he has only $1 per student right now for textbooks."

All Teams Back. Dr. McPherson added that further cuts might still be made as needed. "Mr. Petrillo has real problems in other areas. The only reason you don't hear about them is because math teachers, for example, haven't shown up here tonight."

Board member J.B. Smith, attempting to add some clarity to the situation, later said that the "athletic program's jeopardy of receiving less than $42,000 is about the same as in any other year." Athletic director Norm Van Arsdalen assured the coaches, however, that the chances were great that no teams now would have to be cut from the program.

"We're all serious to get back to coaching," said Mr. O'Neill later, referring to the coaches' earlier threat of a job action if the cuts were not restored.

Dr. McPherson also said he would be eager to get back to work in the fall regardless of the consultant's report to the board. After spending a year working under fire from the board, the superintendent has applied for a job at the American School in Paris, but he does not expect any immediate action on that. "I'll be going on vacation and then I'll be back at the wheel here around August 1 -- definitely," he said.

The consultant recommended in his report that the positions of staff services director and personnel administrator be eliminated from the administration and that the assistant to the superintendent become a staff-related assistant. Dr. McPherson charged the recommendations duplicate planning efforts already considered by him and the board.

CB THEFTS CONTINUE
In Borough and Township. One of the hottest things in town has to be citizen band radios which are being bought—and stolen—at a brisk pace.

Rudolf F. Lehnert, 101 Adams Drive, discovered Monday morning that someone had removed his CB radio, valued at $350, from his car, which had been parked in his driveway during the night. Police said that the car was locked.

Neale Messina of Plain-shoro, lost his $150 CB radio from his locked car while it was parked last week in a Community Park lot.

Two women had their cars entered between 8 and 10:30 Monday night while they were visiting the Princeton First Aid Building.

Ann E. Horn, 100 Stockton Street, lost a CB radio ($125) and an 8-track tape deck valued at $50. Margaret T. Obert, 102 Jefferson Road, lost a 7-channel scanner valued at $140.

The right vent window of each car had been broken to get inside, police said. Both were parked at the Princeton Shopping Center.

In the Borough, a Green Street resident reported the theft of his $160 CB during the weekend from his car parked in his rear yard, and a John Street resident listed the theft of a CB valued at $179.95 from his car parked in the rear of his home. Police said the theft took place between midnight and 10:30 a.m. on Sunday. In both cases, a vent window was forced to get inside.

The rear door of a van owned by a Kendall Park resident was pried open last week while it was parked in the rear of 221 Witherspoon Street. The thief took a CB valued at $150.

A Somerville resident listed the theft of a CB antenna valued at $20—the car was parked in the Tulane East yard—and a side window was broken Monday night to remove a CB valued at $180 from a car parked in the University Store lot. The victim, police said, was a Watchung resident.

In Borough Court. Five Princeton area drivers were fined Monday in Borough traffic court for speeding.

Philip S. Labar, 67 Locust Lane, was fined $40; Vito Rossi, 50 Tee-Ar Place, $35; Kenneth H. Berger, 72 Clover Lane, $18; Robert Pierson, Stony Brook Road, Hopewell, $16, and Gertrude Migler, 165 Bertrand Drive, $15. Robert S. Bennett, Cherry Valley Road, was fined $25 and $10 contempt of court for obstructing passage.

Glen G. McClelland, Stony Brook Road, Hopewell, paid two fines: $25 for parking on private property without the owner's permission and $10 for overdue inspection. Hitchhiking cost Jonathan R. McHale, 14 Lewisville Road, Lawrenceville, $15.

Paying fines of $15 were Felix Brown, 92 Leigh Avenue, wrong way on a one-way street; and Bruce F. Duba, 139 N. Harrison, stop sign.

In Borough criminal court last week, Edward Fitzell, 153 Washington Road, pleaded guilty to being drunk and disorderly and was fined $60. He was also found guilty of trespassing, a charge he denied, and was fined $35. Judge Philip Carchman also imposed a five-day sentence to the Mercer County Workhouse for the two offenses.

Township Court. Among six Princeton area residents fined in Township Court last week, two paid fines for speeding: William Tukey Jr., 10 Norchester Drive, Princeton Junction, $40, and Christina

Fireworks All Set for Palmer Stadium July 1; Midweek Date Picked to Avoid Holiday Exodus

Yes, there will be fireworks his Bicentennial Fourth of July weekend. No, they will not be on the Fourth, but they will explode in and over Palmer Stadium on the first of July. But in view of the fact that Princeton had no fireworks display at all last year, and had no firm plans this year as late as last week, the positive news this week had Township and Borough fathers smiling.

The fireworks will be held on the Thursday before the big weekend, Township Mayor Ray Bleiman explained, because we want as much participation as possible and we fear many residents will be out of town over the long weekend, or possibly in New York on the Fourth for the major events scheduled there. Also, we could get the best fireworks on the first."

Tom Ward of the American Legion, which will again sponsor the fireworks, though of quite in the same way as in the past, added that the Bicentennial display will include 32 minutes of elaborate groundworks, visible only from within Palmer Stadium -- not to reloaders outside the stadium.

"There are only two men in the state licensed to handle this kind of display," said Mr. Ward, "and we've got one of them." Had the fireworks been scheduled for July 4, Princeton would not have been able to obtain the services of either.

Commenting on the extensive ground displays, Mr. Bleiman said: "This is one year to watch the display from inside the stadium."

Free Parking. Officials are hopeful that this year, unlike several years in the recent past, enough spectators will pay their way in to offset the financial burden of the fireworks, expected to be about $7,500. The Legion cancelled its fireworks last year because they had become a losing proposition. Attempts to raise the admission fee merely resulted in fewer people attending.

This year charge is only $1, with children under 12 free. Parking also is free. Gates to the stadium will open at 8, with live music presented until sometime after 9, when darkness permits the beginning of the pyrotechnics. The rain date is Friday, July 2.

The First National Bank of Princeton advanced enough money to cover the cost of this year's display. What in effect is collateral for the loan has been provided by several area civic organizations, including the Legion, the Lions, and the Princeton Battlefield Preservation Society.

Other groups supporting the effort include the Chamber of Commerce, Jaycees, Kiwanis, Historical Society, Soroptimists, Business and Professional Women of Princeton, and the University, which donated the use of Palmer Stadium.

Group Sales. If the event fails to break even, these other groups will help make up the deficit so that the bank can be repaid. If the event makes a profit, the groups pledging back-up money will share the wealth.

Tickets are available at Township and Borough halls, at many stores and businesses, and -- for organizations -- in blocks of 100 that can be purchased for $80. For ticket information call the Chamber of Commerce, 921-7676.

Finley, 44 Harrison Street, $35.

Passing a stopped school bus cost Adam Roth, 102 Moore Street, $30. Others: Frederick M. Stauder, Mountain Road, Belle Mead, $35, careless driving; Phyllis Alroy, 798 Princeton-Kingston Road, $35, improper entering or leaving a highway; and Willard Thorp, 428 Nassau Street, stop sign. Mr. Thorp was also ordered to undergo a motor vehicle re-examination.

In Township criminal court, George Kochis, 1 Terry Lane, Princeton Junction, was fined $110 for eluding a police officer, $30 for speeding and $30 for no registration. He also received a 10-day suspended sentence and one year's probation.

Jeffrey A. Smith, 38 Pardee Circle, was held for possible grand jury action on charges of threatening a life, indecent language and two counts of trespassing. An assault charge by his father, Roland Smith, was dismissed; a second assault charge by Ptl. Robert Nielsen brought a guilty plea but Judge Carchman is withholding sentencing.

Bruno DiDonato, 326 Ewing Street, was fined $15 each on ten charges of owning a barking dog brought by Susan Robinson. Judge Carchman suspended six of the 10 fines.

...SUMMERTIME
And the Stealin' Is Easy. "Now that summer is here, larcenies as usual have gone up at Community Park."

The speaker, Chief Frederick Porter said on Tuesday, the second day of summer, that he would like to offer some advice to those who use the park facilities.

"Never bring anything of value to the park."

"If you have anything of value, lock it in your car trunk. Do not leave valuables inside your car -- they are too vulnerable and you are sure to lose your possessions."

"Do not leave anything exposed on the car seat or under the seat; that is the first place a thief looks after he gains entrance to a car. It is well known that a lot of people leave their wallets behind in their car."

"Bikes should be securely chained to bike racks."

One of the park's victims last week was Neale Messina of Fox Run Drive, Plainsboro, who told police that he had gone to a softball game, parked his car in a Community Park lot and locked it.

When he returned, he found his car open. Missing were a $150 CB radio, a pair of jeans and a leather belt.

PUPPET SHOWSET
At Public Library. The Princeton Public Library has planned a series of summer programs for children. Jacques and Rava will bring their hand crafted puppets Wednesday at 3:30 to perform a variety of vignettes and stories. Tickets are available at the children's desk

Every Monday at 7:30 John Counts will read to children ages six and up. The 50-minute story hours began June 21 and will continue through July 26, with the exception of July 5 when the library will be closed

BELLS TO RING

On Nation's Birthday. The New Jersey Bicentennial Commission has called for a statewide ringing of bells on July 4 at 2 to herald this country's entrance into its third century. Former Gov. Robert B. Meyner, chairman of the Commission, said the bell-ringing program will take place simultaneously in all 50 States and U.S. territories.

The time span will range from 2 p.m. EDT in New Jersey to 7 a.m. Bering Time in American Samoa. The time selected is exactly 200 years from the precise moment that the Liberty Bell proclaimed the independence of the new nation. Communities, churches, schools, fire departments, universities and individuals will toll bells and carillons for two minutes in commemoration of the nation's first two centuries.

In Philadelphia at 2 p.m. the Liberty Bell will be rung (amplified electronically because of the crack) in a symbolic national ceremony conducted by the Sons of the American Revolution at Independence National Park. The nationwide effort is being coordinated by the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration in accordance with a Concurrent Resolution passed by Congress. Governor Meyner also called for a mass display of American flags on homes, public buildings and business and industrial firms in the State for several weeks preceding and following the July 4th weekend

CRAFTS OFFERED

At Playgrounds. The Princeton Recreation Department will offer crafts this summer in all playground programs. Working with felt, paper, paper plates, burlap, yarn and straws, children may make a Bicentennial soldier's hat and powdered wig, beanies, paper plate animals and a hanging "Jaws."

Many of these projects are currently on display in the Public Library. Peggy Brenner, crafts specialist for the Recreation Department, will visit each of the 10 participating parks once each week. The craft program is free.

The playground sessions are 9:30 to 11:30 in the morning and 1:30 to 4 in the afternoon. All are welcome.

TRAFFIC POLE LEVELED

In Turning Accident. A traffic signal pole was leveled Friday evening shortly after six by a car attempting to turn left onto Hamilton Avenue from Harrison Street.

The pole came to rest over a car driven by Martin Chasin, 38, 335 Nassau Street, who was treated at Princeton Medical Center for a fractured nose.

World's Foremost Facility for Harnessing Nuclear Fission Given Completion Date Early in Next Decade at Forrestal

The House of Representatives last week appropriated $75 million toward what is planned to be 8-million fusion energy development project at the Plasma Physics Laboratory located at Princeton University's Forrestal Center.

If the Senate approves and the President signs the appropriation, as anticipated, and if the financing continues on schedule, the Plasma Physics Lab expects to have operational by the early part of next decade the world's most advanced facility for harnessing nuclear fusion — the process in which hydrogen atoms join together and release energy.

The Princeton facility has been experimenting for the past several years with a type of fusion reactor known as a Princeton Large Torus, a donut-shaped apparatus originally developed by the Russians. The new device, known as the Tokamak Fusion Test Reactor, will be about three times larger than the current reactor in all dimensions, and about ten times more expensive.

It also should be capable of generating as much energy as the researchers put into it.

If the $75 million appropriation is approved as scheduled, the expansion of the Plasma Physics Laboratory could begin next year. Construction of the new facilities is expected to require about 250 workmen a year for the next five years.

Once operational, the new reactor would expand the Plasma Physics work force from its current level of 550 to about 770.

Dangers? Minimal. "It's a fairly substantial change," says Don Grove, deputy director of the Tokamak Fusion Test Reactor. "The machines up to now have cost about $20 million. This one is ten times more expensive though it won't require ten times as many people to build and operate it."

Dr. Grove and other Plasma Physics Laboratory officials minimize the possible consequences of even the most unlikely accident at the reactor.

Safety, said Dr. Grove, will be "no problem." The only radioactive material used will be an isotope of hydrogen, tritium. "It will be used only in very small quantities. It has low energy and it's easy to shield."

Because tritium has a half life of about 12 years, it will not remain in the environment in high concentrations for long periods of time, like some other radioactive materials with very long half lives. Dr. Grove pointed out that the Physics Laboratory's project has been reviewed by the University, which is developing its own commercial research park near the Tokamak site on the Forrestal Center. "They are charging ahead with their Forrestal project," said Dr. Grove. "You can bet they would be as concerned as anyone else."

Experts Laugh. "In terms of radioactivity, you are dealing in factors of 100,000 or 1 million less than what is present in fission reactions," said Edward A. Frieman, associate director of the Plasma Physics Laboratory. Conventional nuclear reactors use the fission process to break up atoms of uranium, forming plutonium, a highly radioactive substance, and releasing energy.

"The amount of tritium to be used in the Tokamak is so small," said Dr. Frieman, "that the tritium experts laugh at us when we talk about how we should control it." He added that one environmental analysis had already been issued and that two more would be prepared before the reactor would begin operation.

The associate director said that attempts had been made to contact all environmental groups in the area and inform them of the plans for the Tokamak. "The responsible environmentalists are all very much pro-fusion," he said.

In its beginning phases, the Tokamak will be operated only with hydrogen and deuterium, a non-radioactive form of hydrogen. Any leaks or unforeseen problems would be detected before tritium is even introduced to the system, according to Dr. Frieman.

In Solid Form. Once operational, the reactor would still require only small amounts of tritium, which would be shipped to and stored at the plant in a solid form. "Even if the truck crashed bringing it here, there would be no release," Dr. Frieman said. When the tritium is needed for use, small amounts of the solid are heated to form the gas.

"We are designing this plant so that, even in case of the most incredible accident, we would still be below the radiation safety guidelines for tritium," said Dr. Frieman. "We consider it extremely safe."

He was issued a summons for careless driving by Ptl. Monica Sheehan.

Mr. Chasin told police that he had tried to brake two times but had no brakes. "There was a woman and child in the crosswalk and cars to my right," police quoted Mr. Chasin. "I chose to hit the pole rather than a person."

However, the brakes of Mr. Chasin's car were later tested by Ptl. Sheehan and by an employee of Perna's Towing, Route 206. Both reported the brakes in working order.

HOME IS ENTERED

On Prospect Avenue. An unlocked kitchen window was used to gain entry to a Prospect Avenue home Thursday between midnight and 7:30 a.m.

Police said that an occupant heard a loud bang around midnight and noticed the window open but did not discover that her tan leather pocketbook was missing until morning. It was found later under a neighbor's car. Missing was a wallet containing at least $10, police said, and credit cards.

Two rooms in the Graduate College were entered on Friday. Taken between 1 and 6 a.m. from one was a radio-cassette recorder valued at $100. From the other, an AM-FM radio and $3 in change.

TWO HONORED
By AAMH. Joanne Venezia and William S. Reed were honored at the annual dinner of the Association for Advancement of the Mentally Handicapped.
Miss Venezia received the Hackney Award, given annually to the AAMH member demonstrating the greatest overall progress during the preceding year. The Hackney Award is named for Sheldon and Lucy Hackney, former area residents instrumental in starting the AAMH. He is now president of Tulane University.

Mr. Reed, Director of Personnel Services at Princeton University, was cited for his special contributions to an AAMH program placing mentally handicapped adults in jobs throughout Mercer County. The dinner was also highlighted by an impromptu address from Edward Jacoby, an AAMH member who described conditions inside public mental health and mental retardation facilities.

Incoming AAMH president Royce N. Flippin, Jr. expressed his pleasure at the progress the organization has made since it began operating in 1975 and called for continued commitment from those present to enable AAMH to expand its service to include 300 mentally handicapped adults by the end of 1977. Mr. Flippin succeeds Winton H. Manning of Princeton.

HONORED: Royce N. Flippin Jr., president of the Princeton chapter of the Association for the Advancement of the Mentally Handicapped, congratulates Joanne Venezia as a recipient of an award signifying individual achievement.

The AAMH provides comprehensive human support for mentally handicapped adults throughout Mercer County. It has recently become a member of the Princeton United Fund.

CYCLE IS STOLEN
From Birch Avenue Yard. A $500 Moped -- a combination motorcycle and bicycle -- was stolen Saturday from the yard of its owner, David Johnson, 165 Birch Avenue.
The Moped's steering had been locked, said police, who placed the theft between midnight and 5:15 a.m.

John Sferra, 31 Dorann Avenue, listed the theft of a $100 power mower from his pick-up truck last week while it was parked between 9 and 11 p.m. in a drive of the Community Park School. Mr. Sferra discovered the theft when he arrived home.
Approximately $40 was stolen from a cash box that was taken from the tennis shed which serves the Community Park courts. There were no signs of forced entry, said police, who listed the victim as the Princeton Recreation Department.

A red leather pocketbook containing $2, ID cards and a check book were stolen Monday night from under the front seat of a panel truck parked in front of the Princeton Library. The thief forced open a window of the truck which, police said, was operated by a Trenton woman.
Two boys' 10-speed bicycles valued at $150 each were reported stolen on the same day last week to Borough police. One belonging to a Township resident was taken from in front of 162 Nassau; the second, owned by a Library Place resident, was taken from in front of 70 Nassau. Both were unlocked.
A Spruce Street resident reported the theft of her son's bicycle from in front of their home. It was valued at $25.

Borough Police Score High in Chief's Physical Fitness Program

FITNESS STARTS HERE: Det. Ronald Holliday (left) and Ptl. Robert Mucclarelli jog across finish line of a measured 1.5 mile course that is the heart of a physical fitness program used by Borough police. Both officers scored 100 in a test given last month.

A thief, undone by a silent alarm, sees a patrol car approaching and starts to run. Out of shape and perhaps a bit overweight, the pursuing patrolman can't keep pace and the robber escapes. Or even more tragic, he suffers a heart attack from the sudden exertion.

The chance of that happening to a Borough policeman isn't very likely today because of a mandatory physical fitness program begun three years ago by Chief Michael Carnevale. "I know of no other police department that has such a program," he said.

The impetus came from a 1973 publication of the National Advisory Commission on Criminal Justice Standards and Goals which recommended that by 1975 every agency should provide or make available facilities for an exercise program.

In 1973, Chief Carnevale notified his department that it would undertake such a project. "I told them when the test would be given and I gave them a year to prepare for it physically and probably more important - mentally."

After receiving approval from Mayor and Council and completing all the background work that included medical examinations for each member of the force, Chief Carnevale told his second in command, Capt. Theodore Lewis to implement the program.

Age divisions of under 30, 40, 50 and 50 plus were established - although those over 50 are not required to participate - as well as a point score for superior, above average, average, below average and poor. Included in the test, in addition to running, are sit-ups, push-ups and leg raises. The test is given once a year.

Not a Strenuous Test. In this year's annual test held last month, running for distance was replaced with the more taxing running against the clock.

Both Chief Carnevale and Capt. Lewis emphasize that the program is not a strenuous test. Almost anyone in reasonably good physical condition with a little effort should be able to score a 100, they insist. For example, an officer in the under 30 group to score a 100 has to run 1.5 miles in under 12 minutes, do 50 sit-ups, 40 push-ups and 40 leg raises.

It is based, Chief Carnevale acknowledged, on the well-known aerobics exercise book that stresses various forms of exercise against a clock for a weekly point total to improve the cardiovascular system.

With the aid of a measuring device from the engineering department, police laid out their own 1.5 mile course. It begins at the corner of Bayard Lane and Monument Drive and proceeds down Bayard to Hodge, west on Hodge to Elm Road, left on Elm to Armour Road, right on Campbellton to Stockton and up Stockton to Borough Hall. The finish is next to the stump of a Catalpa tree bearing a marker that it was planted about 1767 by Richard Stockton and bloomed July 4, 1776. Each quarter-mile is marked on the curb.

"It is a known fact," said Chief Carnevale, in explaining the reasons for undertaking "such a traumatic type program," that police "suffer the hazards of and are afflicted with some of the injuries and illnesses of their profession." He named back problems, a high rate of coronary afflictions and obesity.

"It's geared so our own people will be physically fit and adequately able to cope with a strenuous physical situation when it comes," he continued. "A lot of police who have not conditioned themselves suffer cardiac arrests. We hope to eliminate prolonged illnesses, heart problems and a general physical deterioration. Once an officer is hospitalized, it creates problems in terms of manpower."

Success Stories. There have been a number of success stories. "Four or five years ago I was lucky if I could run a 100 yards," said Capt. Lewis, a graduate of Springfield College.

In the test last month, he missed by 3 seconds his goal of running the 1.5 mile course in under 12 minutes. More recently, however, he celebrated his 54th birthday by finally breaking the 12 minute barrier with a time of 11:28. "He was very proud of that," said Chief Carnevale who clocked him.

That time, incidentally, would qualify him for a hundred in the running event in the under 30 division - all this effort of his own volition since he is exempt by age.

Three years ago another officer was told by the doctor that as a result of his medical exam participation was out of the question. "He was determined, though," recalled Carnevale. The next year he did participate and earned an average score (60 to 71). This year he scored 98.

Said Chief Carnevale: "I think it is a real tribute to the office who is in the over 40 bracket. He completely reversed the direction he was heading."

In the first year, five scored a 100. The following year it was six. This year it has more than doubled to 13. In addition, four more scored in the 90s. Which means, Chief Carnevale pointed out, that more than half his force (27 were tested) is in the superior ranking. Three are exempt by age and two for medical reasons.

Those who score a 100 receive a small blue and white ribbon to wear on their uniforms.

"I like to think the ribbon means something," said Carnevale, soon to be 45, and a 100 scorer himself. "Some officers proudly wear them, some don't. Some did exceptionally well this year to qualify for the ribbon. Even more important is the pride within themselves to compete and score 100."

Very Competitive. There was some shock and disbelief among the men after the initial order. "They didn't know if it was for real," commented Carnevale. "But the program soon became competitive, very competitive."

There has been some grouching -- one patrolman allowed that he would just as soon stay in shape by playing tennis -- but the benefits are obvious. "There is no question one has to feel better," said Carnevale.

On the more practical side, Capt. Lewis remarked, "You feel more secure if you know that guy you are going out on patrol with is physically fit. I know I would."

The goal of Chief Carnevale and Capt. Lewis is to have a universal gym set installed in the police locker room area. The very thought of such a machine caused them to rub their hands in anticipation. But such machines are expensive. Although they haven't yet been able to get their request past budget pruners they keep hoping.

Meanwhile, Borough police keep running... and staying physically fit.

FIVE HOMES ON VIEW

In Bridgepoint Tour. Historic Bridgepoint village will open its doors to visitors on Saturday from noon to 5 for a house tour sponsored by Montgomery Bicentennial Committee.

This quaint little community tucked away on back country roads is a reminder of the America of yesteryear and the first farm district to have been placed on the New Jersey State Register of Historic Places. Five dwellings, including a converted barn complex and a mill, will be open to the public.

An old gristmill imaginatively transformed into a comfortable modern home is one highlight of the tour. Within living memory Opie's Mill was still in operation, but it lapsed into disuse and was left vacant. Transformation of the mill has taken years because much effort and energy were first needed to make it snug and sound. Rather than gut the interior and cut up the space into conventional rooms, the owners have kept the old cogs and gears in place and incorporated the millstones into the room plans which need to be seen to be appreciated.

The oldest house, known as the miller's cottage, is also nestled by the millpond and may have been built between 1730 and 1740. Now a three

In the barn a continuous sound-slide lecture will be presented and a mini-workshop conducted by Stephen Voorhees around demonstrating the arts and skills of furniture restoration.

Another typical early home is the house and barns built by Stephen Voorhees around 1803. The house contains some

THIRD PICNIC SET

For Senior Citizens. The third annual senior citizens' picnic will be held Wednesday, July 28, at Prospect from 4-7. Financed by Landau's under the aegis of the Joint Commission on Aging, the focus this year is on planning and participation by various civic, social, religious and service groups and members of the business community.

Commenting on the community participation, Robert Landau said, "We hope to make the picnic bigger and better than ever, with more public spirit and real community feeling. We want to involve the seniors themselves in the planning, too."

Mrs. Jocelyn Helm is chairman of registrations, which will be taken by the Senior Resource Center, 924-7108; Red Cross, 924-2404; and Princeton Recreation Department, 921-9480. Seniors wishing to sign up are requested to give name, address, phone number and advise whether or not transportation is needed.

Expanding on last year's attempts to find those "hidden" seniors who rarely go out, a real effort will be made this year through churches and by word of mouth to reach them. Mr. Landau explained, "I think we can make a big push in that direction now that we have this marvelous effort by many different people. If anyone knows a senior like this -- mother, aunt, grandfather, elderly neighbor -- please let us know so that we can encourage them to come."

Groups already committed to assisting include Princeton Seniors, Kiwanis Club, Princeton Lions Club, American Association of University Women, West Windsor Keenagers, Bet Am Jewish Center, B'nai B'rith Women.

Also, Red Cross, First Baptist Church, Senior Resource Center Mt. Pisgah AME Church, Soroptimists of

SEWER VOTE UNLIKELY

At Tuesday Meeting. The Stony Brook Regional Sewerage Authority will meet Tuesday at 8 in Borough Hall. "Formal action" is one item listed on its agenda but the possibility is great that the "action" will consist of nothing more than tabling the consideration until the next month.

In May the authority tentatively approved a regional sewer plan that calls for one treatment plant in Princeton Township with sewer lines running to Hopewell Township, South Brunswick Township, Princeton Township and West Windsor. Since then, however, officials in Hopewell Township have expressed concern about running long sewer lines through their predominantly rural community.

Joining Hopewell officials in voicing concern for the proposed plan is General William Whipple, director of the Water Resources Institute at Rutgers University. General Whipple is reported to be developing a proposal that would include several treatment plants.

Also, the authority has hired a Trenton environmental policy consultant, Westwater, Gaston, and Dunka, to provide a critique of its tentatively approved plan.

The chance of the authority

UNITED FUND STRATEGY SESSION: George A. Vaughn, newly-appointed chairman of the Research and Industry Division of the 1976 United Fund Campaign is shown above on the left analyzing the United Fund's territory covered. filing its formal application for approval of the system with the State Environmental Protection Agency before all this new information has been received seemed unlikely. Postponement of the formal action seemed more likely.

Critical Votes? Nonetheless, the municipalities involved in the authority seemed to be taking no chances. Princeton Township appointed William Starr, who for the past 25 years has been an engineer with the New York-New Jersey Port Authority, as its representative to the authority at its Monday night meeting.

Township Committee intended to meet with Mr. Starr before next Tuesday's meeting to convey to him a sense of their positions on the sewerage proposals. "There could be some critical votes taken next week," said Township Mayor Jay Bleiman.

GEORGE VAUGHN NAMED

To United Fund Post. Paul Brown, chairman of the 1976 United Fund-Red Cross Campaign of the Princeton Area announced this week the appointment of George A. Vaughn as volunteer chairman of the Fund's Research and Industry Division. Vaughn, President and owner of Maark Corporation in Plainsboro, the manufacturers of metal tennis racquets, is a resident of Princeton and has served as a volunteer in other campaign areas over the last several years.

Brown stated that Mr. Vaughn will be heading up the most important solicitation division, one in which contributions are received from Corporate and employee giving. Last year this division was responsible for raising over one half of the campaign goal of $315,000 from 125 firms with a total of over 19,000 employees.

Mr. Vaughn will be assisted by 256 volunteer assistant chairmen whose job it will be to contact the various firms with 15 or more employees. Each firm will be asked to make a generous corporate contribution and to authorize a solicitation of its employees using payroll deduction. Mr. Vaughn said that last year's drive was successful because of not only the generosity reflected in firm gifts but also from the thoughtful giving of thousands of our area employees.

The campaign this year will be conducted officially from October 1st to late November.

SKI CLUB KEEPS BUSY

With Summer Activities. Some ski clubs don't die in the summer, as the program announced by the Princeton Ski Club reveals.

The 350 member organization plans barbecues, sailing, tennis, rafting, hiking, a beerfest trip, and a beach party before Labor Day arrives and in the early fall will add everything from a fox hunt and car rally to a square dance and canoe camping, all before the snow flies.

A series of eight bi-weekly backyard barbecues are scheduled for alternate Wednesday evenings. They began June 9 and the next will take place June 23 at the home of Sig and Nancy Nicolaysen, Cherry Valley Road. It's BYO food and beverages, with charcoal and ice provided; activity begins at 6, and families are welcome.

The July 7 barbecue is at the residence of Hiro Takahashi, 77 Bayberry Road, and on July 21 Jane and Art Kaimen will host the club at their home on Cleveland Circle, Skillman.

Alternating with the cookouts is a bi-weekly tennis evening on alternate Wednesdays beginning at 6 at the Community Park courts. Interested persons may call Loui Estill at 921-8281. Dates are June 16, and 30; July 14 and 28; Aug. 11 and 25; and Sept. 8.

Day sailing on Barnegat Bay is set for Sunday, June 27, Saturday, July 24, Sunday Aug. 22, and Sunday, Sept. 26; the annual Labor Day weekend trip to Chesapeake Bay is Sept. 4-6. Aug. 7-8 features a raft trip on the Youghiogheny River in western Pennsylvania.

Other events include: A bus trip to the annual summer Bavarian beer festival at Barnesville, Pa. on Saturday, July 10; a "Slow Boat to China" day Saturday, July 17, featuring a picnic on Staten Island, a ferry ride to lower Manhattan, and dinner in Chinatown; hiking July 25 to Sunfish Pond; a day in the sun and surf at Island Beach State Park Sunday, Aug. 15; a Sunday filled with hiking and games on Aug. 29; the annual seafood roast Saturday, Sept. 11.

Listen to the People.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

The Borough of Princeton was granted $50,000 to spend for the construction of bicycle paths. I wonder why such an extremely busy section of our Borough, running parallel to New Jersey State Highway 206, is being seriously considered for bicycle paths!

The people who live in the proposed area are very much against this plan. I believe our local government officials should be responsive to the "voice of the people."

As a long-time resident of both the west side and the east side of the Borough of Princeton, I know there are areas far less dangerous to our citizens who wish to bicycle.

Public Reaction Needed.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Dear Sir:

Our state provides many programs of interest through the facilities of its Planetarium and Museum in Trenton. However, before you partake of these offerings, ask yourself if its worth the risk to personal safety. Are you aware that State Police are in the area around these State buildings Monday through Friday to protect government personnel but few are present on weekends when you might plan a visit?

We have become very aware of the situation as on a beautiful Saturday afternoon an elderly member of my family, accompanied by her 16-year-old granddaughter walked along state Street on their way to the bus. Just opposite the State museum and library, one of four teenage boys snatched the older woman's purse knocking her to the pavement and fracturing her shoulder. Result: for the victim -- severe pain, weeks of discomfort and disability and medical bills. For the assailants -- a few dollars and the freedom to go on plaguing those weaker than themselves.

Don't turn away -- it could happen to someone in your family too. Make your concerns heard! Pressure for measures to safeguard the comings and goings of citizens. There are no quick, wasy solutions to juvenile crime, but that is no excuse for us and our representatives to turn away from the problem.

Gratitude Expressed.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

It is very difficult to find the appropriate words of thanks to the hundreds of Princeton residents, who, during the past two weeks, have done so much to ease the pain we felt after losing our dear husband and father, Murray Medvin. The response of our friends and neighbors was so overwhelming that it is almost impossible to recall each specific act of kindness, generosity and sympathy. We would, however, like at this time to express our warmest thanks to the following people and organizations of Princeton.

First, we will always remember the heroic actions of the Princeton Borough Police, the Princeton First Aid and Rescue Squad, and the staff of the Medical Center, particularly those doctors and nurses in the emergency room and coronary care unit. Through their efforts, which in many cases went clearly beyond the scope of duty, we were able to have two complete days with Murray Medvin that we would not have had in most other communities. Those two days were a gift that we will always cherish.

We must also express our deep appreciation to the Mayor and Council of Princeton Borough, and to the Mayor and Committee of the Township, for the many ways in which they honored Murray. To these words must also be added words of thanks to other local government leaders of both parties.

Our appreciation is also extended to those on all local newspapers who wrote such sensitive articles relating to our loss and the loss to the community.

Murray Medvin did love Princeton, but he and all of us felt Princeton's love in return.

Contributors Thanked.

To the Editor of Town Topics:
On behalf of the Princeton Community Bicentennial Committee, I want to extend our sincere thanks to all of those people and organizations that are responsible for creating the elegant Princeton Bicentennial Information Center out of the previously inelegant Princeton Railroad Station. I'm sure the entire community joins in this expression of gratitude.

It's always risky to attempt to name all of those who are responsible for a community effort of this type, but this was such a wonderful accomplishment that the attempt must be made.

The community is especially indebted to the following: The Greater Princeton Jaycees, under the energetic leadership of John Baker, Ed Salkind and Chris Tarr, for taking the complete initiative and responsibility for organizing and implementing the rehabilitation of the station; Many Jaycee members who participated in the manual labor required for the job; Mrs. Nancy Knox for her tireless efforts extending over a period of six months to obtain permission from the proper railroad and governmental officials to rehabilitate the Station and use it as a Bicentennial Information Center.

The following public-spirited business organizations contributed materials and/or labor needed for the work, either without charge or at greatly reduced prices: First National Bank of Princeton, ladders and building equipment; Grover Lumber Co., lumber and miscellaneous materials; Lucar Hardware Co., locks and tools; Morris Maple & Son, paint; Nelson Glass & Aluminum Co., glass; Princeton Waste Paper & Metal Co., removal of damaged marquee; Redding's Plumbing & Heating Co., plumbing fixtures and materials; Urken Supply Co., wall clock; Woodwinds Associates, Inc., cleanup and maintenance of area in back of station.

The Plumbers and Steamfitters Union, Local 380, provided volunteer labor for the necessary plumbing work.

The following educational institutions and service organization participated in the work as indicated: Kiwanis Club of Princeton, volunteer labor; Princeton Day School, scaffolding; Princeton University, repair of sidewalks; Princeton Regional Schools, artwork in the station.

While the generous participation of the organizations mentioned above reduced the cost of the rehabilitation work to a small fraction of what it otherwise would have been, some costs were necessarily incurred. Contributions to defray these costs were made by the following organizations: Historical Society of Princeton; Palmer Square, Inc.; Princeton Battlefield Area Preservation Society; Rotary Club of Princeton; Wm. Sword & Co., Inc.; and several contributions by individuals were also received.

The Princeton community can be justly proud of this outstanding community effort in which so many of its citizens and organizations participated.

The Democratic Process?

To the Editor of Town Topics:
Traditionally, the monthly school board meeting has had a dual function. The board conducts its business, citizens and staff have a valuable forum (from which an insulated board can learn a lot.)

While other previous boards have been able to delicately manage to conduct such meetings, this has certainly not been the case under President Meyerhofer. The effect has been to control, inhibit and keep out dissent.

Wios Race, Loses Meat
An enterprising culprit almost solved the high cost of meat last week.

Thursday afternoon at the Acme store in the Princeton Shopping Center, he loaded a cart with meat selections valued at $205.18. He was seen leaving the store at the Mall exit, however, by the manager, who, joined by other employees, gave chase.

The suspect ran toward the parking area at the rear of the store, still pushing his loaded cart. But, abandoning the cart and the meat near a telephone booth, he jumped into a tan car and drove away. Sgt. David Potts investigated.

Recent events are illustrative:

Although neither the tape of the meeting, nor the "official version" of the board approved minutes would show how chaos reigned at the April meeting. Incredibly, when a citizen persistently attempted to ask a question, the police were called in. President Meyerhofer abruptly adjourned the meeting, and stomped out amidst cries of "racism" and "you can't do that."

Another month, a new group of concerned parents came to honestly petition the board. They had gone through the necessary channels to be on the agenda, only to have to wait until very late in the evening to be heard. They came with good will and left with utterances of futility and "never again".

This month, after refusing to hear the group of High School staff at two successive meetings, Mr. Meyerhofer attempted to put them off for a third time, although they had procedurally been put on the agenda.

Only after frantic pleas, were the staff and students finally heard at a quarter to midnight! The spokesman for the group, a political science teacher, pointed out the irony of the board keeping the group waiting while working on "new policies for public participation!"

I, myself, was described as a "disgruntled adult" by Town Topics in the report of this meeting. My frustration was a result of the President's refusal first, of seeing my hand raised, then, of allowing my question - calling me out of order repeatedly.

Not a novice of these meetings, I have never had trouble understanding the rules; it has become impossible to understand when Mr. Meyerhofer deems it proper to speak. Is it after the press leaves, at 10:00 p.m.? Or closer to midnight? Although legally, the board decides if and when the public can speak at meetings, does not the elected board have any moral responsibility to safeguard the traditional exchange of views?

The silent acquiescence of most members of the board to the above events can only leave us uneasy about the fate of the democratic process at school board meetings.

The board worries about the defeat of the budget. Its own lack of responsiveness and tainted credibility will defeat it again.

Subtle Touch Not Good.

To the Editor of Town Topics:
Congratulations Princeton!

Yes, congratulations on your being steadfast in not commercializing on the Bicentennial.

Yes, congratulations on the subtle touch of celebration. On Flag Day only one flag was unfurled on Nassau Street. I guess it's one flag for one Nation.

Yes, congratulations on your subtle approach to the Bicentennial. Perhaps when this town wakes up we can start laying out the plans for the next celebration.

Bias Against I-95.

To the Editor of Town Topics:
In Town Topics recently appeared two ads by Henderson Realtors. Would they have appeared side by side to demonstrate the Henderson bias against I-95. Specifically it appears that I-95's proposed route through Hopewell Township, etc., is objectionable to Henderson as it impinges on their own interest in property sales in the area!!

They include Jack Avins of 178 Herrontown Road, Walter G. Gibson of 645 Princeton-Kingston Road and Dr. Chandrakant B. Patel of 423 Lawrenceville Road, Lawrenceville who were honored together "for outstanding team cooperation in bringing certain revolutionary video concepts from research to commercial product in the ColorTrak system." Keigler, 50 Randall Road, of the RCA Astro-Electronics Division, Hightstown, was a co-winner of an award "for outstanding contributions to the development of a highly cost effective communications satellite, the RCA Satcom series."

The David Sarnoff Awards were established by RCA in 1956 to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary in electronics of the late General David Sarnoff. The awards to individuals have been made annually since then to scientists and engineers within the Corporation. The awards for team performance were established in 1960 and were conferred for the first time in 1961. Each recipient is given a gold medal, a bronze replica, a citation, and a cash reward.

SERVED AS CONSULTANT

For Washington Park. Henry F. Arnold of Arnold Associates, landscape architect of 40 Witherspoon Street, was a consultant in the design of a new park in Washington, D.C. Conceived of a Bicentennial project in 1971 the park has been named "Constitution Gardens."

The 45-acre park has unfolded on the Federal Mall to replace the temporary buildings that were there for over a half century. This new green space between the Washington Monument and the Lincoln Memorial lies immediately north of the long reflecting pool. The National Park Service commissioned the Washington office of Skidmore, Owings and Merrill with Mr. Arnold to design this new facility.

Constitution Gardens extends the informal character of adjacent West Potomac Park to the north side of the Mall as a setting for the formal geometry of the Lincoln Memorial Reflecting Pool. Exceptional in the overall scale and number of large trees planted, there are 35 acres of lawn, 2500 new shade trees and over a hundred thousand smaller plants and bulbs that have recently been installed.

The focus of the park is a seven-acre lake designed to allow people to walk close to the water along wide paths that follow the continuously curving lake edge. The shape of the lake with its small island creates the illusion of a larger area of water as seen from different vantage points in the Park. In addition to the lake and plantings the park has two miles of bicycle and footpaths, benches, a comfort station, drinking fountains and a food kiosk with seating area near the edge of the lake.

A Noisy Problem.

To the Editor of Town Topics:
The subject of the environment is a controversial one and is likely to remain so. Take noise, for example. What should we do when noise intrudes in our daily lives?

Some observations on this question were included in a letter printed in The Washington Post on March 26, 1976. Among other things, the writer noted:

"In October 1971, the District of Columbia Environmental Health Bureau conducted a study of traffic noise in the District. The results of this study indicated that the average noise level was in the 70 to 75 decibel range—a level reported to be the equivalent of the steady roar of factory machinery. At a noise level of only 45 decibels, interference with sleep normally results."

Such observations are not lost on homeowners who live in my immediate area. For a number of years, an exhaust fan located outside American Can made such a loud noise that it pervaded this neighborhood.

One day I phoned the director of the facility and mentioned this fact. He said he would look into the matter and called me back the same day. He explained that the noise had been measured and had been found to conform with the Township Code, Section 23-74. Despite these results, American Can voluntarily moved its exhaust fan and installed baffles aiming the noise away from Terhune Road.

Now we have a new noise problem, this one emanating from a building located behind my house, owned by New Plan Realty Trust, New York, and leased by the Institute for Defense Analyses.

I raised this issue with the Township Committee last fall and subsequently received a letter from the Township. The letter indicates that noise from the property does not meet the requirements of Section 23-74 of the Township Code.

Specifically, the noise level of the octave band frequency at or above 4000 hertz is "approximately 43 db, where the permitted level is 32 db," to quote from the letter.

Perhaps members of the Township Committee are not bothered by excessive noise for the problem persists. Are we reaching a point in Princeton where we have to close our bedroom windows to sleep soundly?

A Planner's Viewpoint.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Your recent feature article (June 10) on the Master Plan revisions in progress by the Regional Planning Board of Princeton raises some important issues. We have a particular fear that the divisiveness stated by the headline "Housing Proponents and Environmentalists to Clash as Residential Expansion Nears" will be a self-fulfilling prophesy unless attention is shifted to some fundamentals.

As a regional organization, our interest is not only in the activities of the Princeton Board, but also with the planning in surrounding municipalities. In Lawrence, Hopewell and Montgomery Townships, Master Plan revisions are underway.

Under the new Municipal Land Use Law that takes effect August 1, all area municipalities will review their Master Plans (and zoning laws) with reference to a list of specified contents. Your Princeton readers should note that development patterns in these surrounding areas will have as certain an impact on the future of the Princetons as development actually within the Princeton Township line.

With reference, then, to all our region's municipalities, MSM is committed to the principle that there is no inherent conflict between environmental and social values. We are all environmentalists, having learned the essentially biological principle that everything is related to everything else.

We have found that this law of nature is useful in our human affairs: it follows, for example, that our actions must take cognizance of their consequences before the fact, and that single-purpose planning always runs into trouble in the long run. In land use, we think now of "adapting" development to its social and natural environment—to the contours of the land as well as to the character of our small communities.

But application of these concepts is not so easy. Where do we begin? If "adaptation" is our watchword, then we at least know that we are concerned with a process. What, we must ask first, is the process by which we are planning for our area's development?

We might start by keeping some basic principles in mind. I have three, and am sure that others will add to the list. First, consider all the plan elements—land use, housing, circulation, services, conservation, and others—simultaneously, or at least iteratively, for their interrelationships are critical.

Second, involve the public early and often so that their values become the basis of the plan, and so that the final plan will be no surprise. Third, evaluate the feasibility of implementing the plan as the process evolves, so that the specific criteria and standards used in implementing the plan will flow logically from the policy.

With the process established, we can think in terms of substance. Here, recent actions at the State Level can give us guidance. The Municipal Land Use Law (noted earlier) specifies the contents of Master Plans.

As is well known, a dominant consideration will be the provision of a "fair share" of regional housing need, while protecting the environment that is our basic attraction. Here, the recent court decisions—Mt. Laurel, Middlesex County, Bedminster—are basic, as is the Governor's "Executive Order No. 35" (April 2, 1976).

There are practical guides to the process, and technical references to the contents of our municipal master plans. Responsible critics of planning for land use and housing should be familiar with them. The planning boards, for their part, must be committed to a clear statement of the planning process, and then of the substantive policy as it evolves. If the Board's primary responsibility is the discussion of policy alternatives, the consideration of public sentiment, and the resolution of potential conflicts, then it is hard to see how it can proceed expeditiously without the best available professional assistance for the supporting technical work.

During the next year, planning for land use and housing will be our principal public issue. Planning is complex, but the alternative is utter chaos.

MSM is concerned that each of our area's municipalities—for they will continue to be the basis of this discussion—be committed to rational studies, a clearly stated process, and the fullest participation of the public. This will assure that this important public activity will be credible, as well as technically correct.

SAMUEL M. HAMILL, JR.

(Editor's Note: Mr. Hamill is executive director of the Middlesex-Somerset-Mercer Regional Study Council.)

Don't Turn Right—Yet

"Don't make a right turn on a red light—yet," Chief Frederick Porter warned this week.

Chief Porter explained that while it is true that Bill S-670 has been passed by the State Legislature, it has not been signed by Governor Byrne. When it is, Chief Porter continued, it will not become effective for six months.

"Those under the impression that they can now make a right turn on red can receive a summons for doing so," Chief Porter described the proposal as "a good one. It works. New Jersey is just a little late in getting it."

SQUIBB WINS AWARD

For Art Exhibits. E. R. Squibb & Sons is one of 21 winners of the tenth annual Business in the Arts Award, the competition's co-sponsors, Esquire Magazine and the Business Committee for the Arts, have announced. Companies in 39 states and four foreign countries were nominated for the award, which is given to corporations for outstanding support programs in the fine and performing arts.

Squibb was cited for "its extensive exhibition program in its World Headquarters art gallery on Princeton-Lawrenceville Road, highlighted in 1975 by 'American Paintings: A Gathering from Three Centuries' and 'Alaska: The Great Land,' a photography exhibition." The American painting exhibition was organized by Squibb with The Historical Society of Princeton as the first exhibition resulting from the National Collection of Fine Arts' bicentennial inventory of privately-owned paintings executed before 1914. Squibb originated and organized the Alaska photography exhibition for the National Park Foundation.

The international pharmaceutical firm first opened Squibb Gallery in October of 1972 and has mounted six to eight public exhibitions each year since. The next season opens in October.

The Award is an original bronze sculpture by Demetrios Mavroudis, a young Greek artist. Styled in the Italian tradition, the sculpture is designed to capture different light sources. It will be permanently displayed in the company's library.

Squibb was nominated for the Award by The Historical Society of Princeton, the National Park Foundation, the Lawrence Township Schools and the New Jersey Chapter of the Retinitis Pigmentosa Foundation, all for different exhibitions and support programs.

DISASTER BULLETIN

AN APPEAL FROM THE RED CROSS!

Our advertising copywriter said that the telegram from the National Red Cross telling about the urgent need for help in Idaho and Guam would be enough... that concerned people in the Princeton area didn't need an ad with pictures of flooded homes and dead cattle, and homeless children to motivate them to respond. We agreed.

Here's the TWX

THE TETON DAM CATASTROPHE HAS MAGNIFIED THE CRITICAL NEED FOR FUNDS TO MEET RED CROSS OBLIGATIONS TO ASSIST VICTIMS OF DISASTER. THIRTY-SEVEN RED CROSS DISASTER SPECIALISTS FLOWN IN TO ASSIST VOLUNTEERS AND STAFF IN PROVIDING FOOD, SHELTER, NURSING CARE AND OTHER EMERGENCY ASSISTANCE:

THIS DISASTER ADDED TO THOSE IN OKLAHOMA, TEXAS, MISSISSIPPI, ALASKA, AND GUAM HAS MADE OUR FINANCIAL CRISIS MORE URGENT THAN EVER.

Rev. Mr. Whittemore to Leave Trinity Church Next December for Seamen's Church Institute

The Rev. James R. Whittemore, rector of Trinity Church for the past nine years, will become the director of the Seamen's Church Institute of New York in January. He succeeds Dr. John Mulligan of Nelson Ridge, who is retiring.

A graduate of Yale University and the Episcopal Theological School in Cambridge, Mass., the Rev. Mr. Whittemore was ordained in 1951. Prior to accepting the call as rector of Trinity Church in 1967, he was rector of Christ Church, Hamilton-Wenham, Mass. His earlier ministries included churches in Grosse Pointe, and Sault Sainte Marie in his native Michigan.

The Seamen's Church Institute of New York is an agency of the Episcopal Church in the Diocese of New York. It is an organization devoted to the well-being and special interests of the more than 750,000 merchant seamen of all nationalities, races, and creeds who come into the Port of New York every year. First established in 1834 as a floating chapel in New York harbor, the Institute offers a wide range of recreational and educational services for the mariner, including counseling and the help of five chaplains in emergency situations.

The Institute has a new building overlooking the Battery built under the leadership of Dr. Mulligan, a Mariner's International Center at Port Newark and a budget larger than the diocesan budget of the Diocese of New York. In his new post the Reverend Whittemore expects to be able to devote some of his time to working with the new national center for Christian Spirituality at General Seminary, of which he is now a consultant.

In a letter to members of the parish, wardens Christopher R.P. Rodgers and Henry Bessire expressed gratitude to the Rector for "his active, committed and vibrant leadership of Trinity Parish."

Trinity Church is in the midst of putting into effect a Master Plan for a new organ and relocation of its interior space, funded by a parish-wide appeal. Because he is not leaving until the end of the year, the Rector will be able to assist in the ongoing leadership of the parish in the plan's implementation, they said.

News Of The CHURCHES

FESTIVAL SCHEDULED

By New Brunswick Presbytery. The Presbytery of New Brunswick has planned a Festival of Frontiers, past, present and future, for this weekend, with several of the scheduled events taking place in Princeton.

The first event is an Evening of Music and History Friday at 8 in Alexander Hall. There will be choirs, handbell choirs and sacred dance from the churches of the Presbytery. Dr. Lee H. Bristol, former president of Westminster Choir College, hymnologist, organist and lay reader in the Episcopal Church, will add his voice in singing and in commentary, giving historical vignettes.

On Saturday morning there will be two sessions of educational events, from 10-11 and from 11-12, at the campus center of Princeton Theological Seminary. These include a multi-media presentation on "Spirit '76"; a motion picture and discussion on "The Presbyterians"; a puppet show, "The Cheesely Chronicles," interesting facts of 200 years ago as recorded by Tilsiter Cheesely, a church mouse; and a Resources for the Bicentennial workshop for church leaders.

Exhibits of Presbyterian church history and present life will be displayed in the campus center lounge and auditorium as well as Presbyterian of New Brunswick mission programs, colonial models, documents and memorabilia.

Highlights of the evening program is an 18th century roast beef dinner followed by "An Evening with John Witherspoon," a historical drama written by Martha Lou Stohlman and Leofferts Loetscher and directed by Delight Holt. It will be given in the Seminary campus center auditorium at 8:15.

BULLETIN
Guest preacher Sunday at 10 at Nassau Presbyterian Church will be George Chauncey, Washington Communications Executive, Presbyterian Church, U.S., and chairman of the Interreligious Task Force on United States Food Policy, Washington, D.C.

Confidence in State Government Has Dropped Sharply in Two Years

Confidence in state government has dropped sharply in the past two years, according to the latest New Jersey Poll conducted in May by the Eagleton Institute of Politics of Rutgers University. The Poll found that only 9 percent of the state's adult residents said they had "a lot of confidence" in the government in Trenton, as compared to 19 percent in March 1974 shortly after the Byrne administration took office.

Even more dramatically, those who said they had "not much confidence" in state government have risen sharply from 16 percent in 1974 to 42 percent in 1976. Those with "some confidence" numbered 57 percent in 1974 and 45 percent in 1976.

The New Jersey POLL

The small number remaining had no opinion.

While confidence in state government has fallen, confidence in the federal government has risen somewhat. Those with "a lot of confidence" in the government in Washington numbered 19 percent compared to 13 percent in 1974. Those with "not much confidence" remained stable at 33 percent presently and 32 percent two years ago.

Confidence in local government in New Jersey has also declined. Although those with "a lot of confidence" remains about the same -- 24 percent in 1976 and 25 percent in 1974 -- those without much confidence have risen from 22 percent to 30 percent.

Poll officials noted that different kinds of voters felt alienated from the state and the federal governments. Those with low confidence in the state government tended to be wealthier, residents of the suburbs, independent voters, older and white. Those with low confidence in the government in Washington tended to be Democrats and those who traditionally make up the Democratic voting coalition -- those of lower income, urban dwellers, nonwhites and younger residents.

Past Events a Factor. Poll officials pointed to major events of the past two years as important explanatory factors in the public perceptions of the state and national governments. Alan Rosenthal, Director of the Eagleton Institute, commented that: "You have to realize that in 1974, the Watergate scandal was at its height, and Brendan Byrne was still enjoying the traditional 'honeymoon' afforded new governors.

On the other hand, at the present time, President Ford has succeeded somewhat in establishing an image of integrity in Washington, while New Jerseyans have been observing a continuing controversy over taxes and the budget, which involves the governor, the legislature, and even the court."

Officials of the Poll also noted that most state residents do not feel the government in Trenton "pays attention to what the people think," and believe "the state government is pretty much run for a few big interests." Those who think that "not much attention" or "none" is paid comprise 42 percent of the respondents, and those who think the state serves big interests rather than "all the people" include 61 percent.

Knowledge about state politics in New Jersey continues at a relatively low level. Although 82 percent of those surveyed could correctly name the Governor, only 70 percent knew he was a Democrat. On the legislative side, only 52 percent realize the Democrats control the state legislature, and only one in five -- 20 percent -- could name any state senator.

HIGHLIGHT OF THE WEEK

and the grace and nostalgia that goes with one built in the early part of this century. Set off by towering trees and established shrubbery, this solidly built four bedroom stucco home is a short distance from Princeton, conveniently near train commutation to New York. A neat location!

Almost classic in its balanced design, it features a spacious entry hall flanked on one side by a large living room, running the depth of the house, with fireplaces and adjoining sun porch, on the other by a gracious dining room that opens to a breezy screened porch. Efficient kitchen, powder room and breakfast or laundry room complete the first floor.

But the appeal of this house is not in such basic statistics, rather in the light and space that comes with high ceilings, generous rooms, solid old fashioned plaster walls, interesting woodwork and dark tone polished floors. There's even an extra - a quaint, "leavesy" study or sewing room tucked away upstairs. This NEW LIGHT LISTING is a good one! $69,900

Careful Planning and Crop Rotation Provides Family of Six With Year-Round Fruit and Vegetable Needs from Small Plot

Living off the fruits of the land: our forefathers grew what they ate as a matter of necessity, ecologists encourage it as a means of preserving the environment, and the young who shun 9-5 desk jobs band together in rural Vermont to practice it as an alternative life style.

Here in Princeton, a Township man is proud of the fact that he and his wife, their four children and his wife's parents from nearby Rossmore are self-sufficient in fruits and vegetables for a whole year as the result of his weekend hobby of enthusiastic gardening behind their neo-colonial home, on considerably less than an acre of land.

When Brian Sheehan came to Princeton six years ago to take a job as a bio-engineering head with E.R. Squibb and Sons in New Brunswick, there was nothing but poison ivy and weeds behind the spec-built home they bought on Caldwell Drive. Today in a plot 150 feet long by 40 feet wide of organically-enriched, weed-free soil, there are 100 potato plants; 24 double rows of four different varieties of peas sown at two week intervals; 28 neatly-staked tomato plants; a large hybrid and an Italian plum tomato for paste, as well as 28 pepper plants, onions and lettuce.

Mr. Sheehan takes advantage of the long growing season in New Jersey in order to plant and harvest two crops. The potatoes will remain in until September, but very soon the peas, which were planted in early March as soon as the soil was tillable, will be pulled up and replaced with four different kinds of beans, pole and bush beans, yellow wax beans and baby limas; two different varieties of corn; butternut squash, carrots and beets.

GROWING WHAT THEY EAT: Brian Sheehan of 74 Caldwell Drive stands knee-deep in potatoes and tomatoes with his son Michael and two of his daughters, Patty (left) and Kathy. An ardent gardener, Mr. Sheehan grows enough fruits and vegetables to feed his family for a whole year in a plot 150 by 40 feet.

Berries, Too. At one end of the vegetable garden is a large strawberry bed which has yielded its crop for the year. Well mulched and full of runners, it is surrounded on two sides by raspberry canes. At the other end, a row of fencing supports large blackberries just ripening, which the Sheehans make into jam.

Some 22 blueberry bushes bearing clusters of marble-sized blueberries are planted as a double hedge along one side of the property, which also boasts 10 semi-dwarf apple trees in four different varieties; three peach trees, two plum and two pear trees. There is a 22-cubic foot freezer in the garage into which much of the excess harvest is stored along with a side of beef, a new plant each year at the Hospital Fete and gives away cuttings to friends.

"We do buy some oranges and bananas for variety," Mrs. Sheehan admits, "and Japanese beetles on the occasionally some corn before raspberry bushes, and Kathy ours has come in. But we also and Patty, who are in first give away lots of our grade and kindergarten, produce." We have so much of everything!"

Her husband, who originally pea plant and enjoy picking came from Gardner, Mass., a the darkest, ripest blueberries mill town near Worcester, had as well as popping a few into his first taste of gardening in the mouth. the rich soils of Wisconsin Mr. Sheehan orders his when he was a graduate seeds, fruit trees and rose student working on a Ph.D. in hushes (he has planted 120 bio-chemistry, and she taught high school and junior high school to support them. Growing things then had an economic impetus which became a consuming passion.

No Time For Golf. "Instead of playing golf, I garden," Mr. Sheehan explains. "One of the good things about it is that the children always know where I am. If they want to be with me, they can come out and garden along with me for a while."

Lynn, who will be entering Princeton High School as a freshman this year, has her own little herb bed of which she is especially proud. In it she has lavender, which she makes up into sachets at Christmas time, lemon balm, chives and oregano. She buys a new plant each year at the Hospital Fete and gives away cuttings to friends.

Michael Sheehan, who will be entering the Middle School this fall, was quick to tell his father that he had spotted Mrs. Sheehan admits, "and Japanese beetles on the occasionally some corn before raspberry bushes, and Kathy ours has come in. But we also and Patty, who are in first give away lots of our grade and kindergarten, produce." We have so much of everything!"

COWARD PLAY TO OPEN
Next Week at Intime. The Summer Intime 9 company has gone into rehearsal for its opening play, Noel Coward's "Fallen Angels." The play will open at the air-conditioned Murray Theatre on the University campus next Thursday, July 1, at 8:30. Other performances will be Friday through Sunday, and again Thursday through Sunday, July 8-11. Sunday performances are at 7:30.

Brendan Burke, director of last year's "Charley's Aunt," has returned from the Loretto Hilton Repertory Company in St. Louis to direct this British comedy.

The play centers around a pair of restless young wives, played by Patricia Gorman and Kathleen MacLaine, who are bored by their placid married lives. With their husbands away on a hunting trip they anxiously await the arrival of their French ex-lover, Maurice. He and the husbands arrive on the scene at the same time.

Ms. Gorman has appeared in numerous roles at Theatre Intime including Sorrell in "Hayfever," and Celia in "As You Like It." She has spent the past year performing in Pinter's "The Basement" at the Manhattan Theatre Club, and "Faust" at the Perry Street Theatre.

Ms. MacLaine was formerly a student at Rider College, where she appeared as Rosalind in "As You Like It." Intime veterans Richard Ferrugio and Joseph Harheson play the husbands. James Horton and Winnie Holzman portray the celebrated Maurice, and Saunders, the highbrow maid, respectively.

Intime Cabaret. Composer Robert Davidson, who has scored many Intime shows in the past and who also prepared an original cabaret for Summer Intime last year, will return to direct the entire 1976 season.

He will introduce new songs of his own, plus the comedy routines of the cabaret's hosts, Adam Roth and the Exciting Melltones, including John Harrison and John Negus.

Mr. Harrison explains their repertoire as "Beatles to bebop, with a little country-western for dessert." Mr. Roth plays guitar, Mr. Harrison saxophone and tuba, and Mr. Negus several saxophones and banjo.

For the purer musical-comedy lovers, Mr. Davidson's songs will be performed by Giulia Pagano, Wendy Cohen, Bebe Neuwirth, Peggy Bayer, and a host of new faces. Comedy sketches are also being prepared, to be performed by the Cabaret cast, as well as members of the SI company. Ex-vaudeville Sidney Porcelain will add his own brand of comedy to the SI Cabaret.

The SI Cabaret will be held every Friday and Saturday night at 11 throughout the summer starting July 2 in the Lower Room, adjacent to Murray Theatre. Admission is $2 or $1.50 with a ticket stub from a drama series presentation. A season subscription is available for $12.

Films Scheduled. Summer Intime's Classic Film Series continues on Monday with "Act One," the life story of playwright Moss Hart starring Jason Robards, Jack Klugman, and Eli Wallach. On Tuesday the movie will be "Notorious," Hitchcock's suspense masterpiece of love and deception with Cary Grant and Ingrid Bergman.

The movie week finishes on Wednesday with "The Seven Year Itch." Tom Ewell and Marilyn Monroe star as the businessman and the girl upstairs. All three films will be shown in air-conditioned McCormick Art Museum behind Murray Theatre at 7:30. Only subscribers will be admitted until 7:15.

Subscriptions for the drama, film and cabaret series are available at the Summer Intime box office. Box office hours are 10 to 8 Monday through Saturday, 1-7 Sunday. Call 452-8181 for information and reservations.

TALKING SENSE TO JOHN ADAMS: In the forthcoming production of the musical "1776" by the Olde Towne Players in Washington Crossing State Park over the July 4 weekend, Benjamin Franklin, as played by Walter MacNicoll, delivers a reprimand to John Adams (Wayne Carter) during argument over the slavery question.

"1776" DUE

At Washington Crossing. A Production of the award-winning historical musical "1776" by the Olde Towne Players will be presented in the Open Air Theatre at Washington Crossing State Park, on the long weekend of July 4. The events preceding the signing of the Declaration of Independence come alive in the book by Peter Stone, with music and lyrics by Sherman Edwards.

The play focuses on John Adams in his almost fanatical crusade for American independence. His chief proponents are Benjamin Franklin, master of sagacity and wit, and the flamboyant Richard Henry Lee, of Virginia. Among the opposition are members of the Pennsylvania delegation, headed by John Dickinson; the entire South, led by Edward Rutledge; the state of New York, and until July 2, the state of New Jersey.

selections from his own nightclub act as well as the regular cabaret group numbers. Joining Lyon will be Georgine Freedman (best remembered for her "Plant Lady" in last year's cabaret); Ron Brown (the cabaret's musical director); Joan Lucas (the show's choreographer); T. Harding Jones, and director Dan Berkowitz.

Janet Cantore and Brian Watkinson, two newcomers to the Inn Cabaret, round out the cast. Peter Wright will be at the piano.

Tentative plans call for Lyon and Brown to sing two duets, plus Lyon performing his own composition, "Little Lionel." Also scheduled is a "Great Works of Literature Set to Music" tribute to William Shakespeare, and a comedy sketch with Lynn, Lucas and Freedman as three terribly proper Britishers on board ship. Laird White has written original comedy material, and her original "Plant Lady" sketch will be done again.

Ina Wilner and Wayne Carter, both veterans of Open Air Theatre shows, will co-direct, with Carter also appearing as John Adams, a role he has performed twice before. He also directed and appeared in "Man of La Mancha" for two successive years in the Park. Ms. Wilner's credits include "Annie Get Your Gun" and "Once Upon A Mattress" in the same theatre.

Among the featured roles are Walt MacNicoll as Franklin and Larry Bond as the young and cultured Rutledge. Richard Kugler portrays the conservative Dickinson, radically opposed to American independence, offset by Thomas Jefferson, played by James Price.

Jean Delgado and Kathi Johnson are double-cast as Abigail Adams, devoted wife to the man "always first in line to be hanged." Priscilla Orr and Kathy Hunsburger will alternate in the role of Martha Jefferson, young wife of the Declaration's author.

Musical direction will be by Tom Hagaman, costume designs by Don White, and set design by Don White and Elaine Hagaman. The show will play at the Open Air Theatre on July 1 through July 5 with curtain time 8:30. Tickets are available at the door.

2D SHOW SCHEDULED

By Inn Cabaret. The Inn Cabaret, the weekly musical and comedy revue which plays Friday evenings at 8:30 and 10:30 in the Prince William Room of the Nassau Inn, will present its second show of the summer season this Friday.

Milton Lyon, director of the PJ&B musicals and Princeton's Triangle show, will make a rare appearance as a performer at this show, doing

BLUE GRASS IS FIRST
Of Summer Sounds. Summer Sounds will inaugurate the 1976 series of ten free weekly community concerts with a blue grass jamboree Thursday, July 1, on the Princeton Shopping Center Mall. Specializing in "full-blown gut-bucket blue grass," the concert by the popular Southern Mountain Boys will begin promptly at 7:30 and will conclude before dark. The audience is encouraged to bring blankets or campchairs.

Initiated last summer and held in a variety of outdoor settings, Summer Sounds features mostly groups from this area. According to Ruth Thornton, chairman, Princeton is a natural for such a series because it has people of all ages who like as well as make all kinds of music and who are in town all summer. Princeton also has places that are grassy and pleasant and which invite relaxed listening.

The University, Westminster Choir College and the Shopping Center have pledged full support as well as sharing greensward; the Recreation Department is providing staff assistance; the Arts Council has offered its experience; and the Youth Fund has come up with a bare-bones budget of $1,500.

Other concerts this summer will include a Bicentennial life and drum band playing in Battlefield Park, three rock groups, a concert band, a square dance in the refurbished Dinky Station, a Dixieland band, soul music and barbershop quartets. The rock and soul groups will go on until about 9:30.

Committee members represent the schools, the Arts Council, the Recreation Department, the University,

DANCERS ARE CHOSEN
For Ballet Company. Nearly 100 ballet and modern dancers from 21 dance schools in New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania auditioned for acceptance in the Princeton Ballet Company this year.

The ballet auditions were judged by David Haward, formerly a soloist with the Royal Ballet Company in England and presently director of the Harkness Ballet School in New York. The audition class was conducted by Alexei Yudenich, former soloist with the Pennsylvania Ballet who now teaches at Glassboro College and the Princeton Ballet Society School.

Two new members for the senior ballet company plus 13 senior apprentices were chosen. Nine dancers were chosen for the junior apprentice status.

Marcus Schulkind, who has danced with various leading American modern companies and the Batsheva Dance Company of Israel and now has his own dance company in New York, conducted and judged the modern dance auditions. He selected seven dancers for the senior modern company, five as senior apprentices, two for the junior company and two as junior apprentices.

The Princeton Ballet Company was founded in 1963 by Audree Estey, director and founder-director of the Princeton Ballet Society, which maintains the company and the Princeton Ballet Society School.

Newly accepted or accepted for a new category from the Princeton area are: Ruth Charney, Mark Edenfield, Abigail Kaplan, Dana Myers, Eve Murto, Michelle Morgan, Jill Bonin, Erin Fitzgerald, Jessica Hopfield, Jessica Liu, Katharine Litz, Shari Nyce, Anne Tomalin, and Johanna Wirtz, all of Princeton.

Also, Janet Mekitarian, Michelle Newman, Heide Sackerlotzky and Priscilla Whitehead of Lawrenceville; Sara Punnett, Rocky Hill; Barbara Clark, Belle Mead; Jennifer Benton and Denise Kendall of Princeton Junction; Denise DeWindt and Swati Lele, East Windsor; and Meg Potter and Andrea Juris, Kendall Park.

PRINCE
All The President's Men. Yes, it's very good. As a primer on the "how to" of investigative reporting, it is unsurpassed. How Washington Post reporters Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein -- portrayed superbly by Robert Redford and Dustin Hoffman -- brought the entire Nixon administration tumbling down emerges as a taut, suspenseful detective story. The behind-the-scenes chronicle is suspenseful and involving. Beginning with the haphazard discovery of five strangely-linked intruders in Democratic headquarters (Watergate), the film moves quickly to their arraignment and the assignment of lower echelon reporter Woodward to cover the story. What starts off as a routine assignment soon shifts into high gear as Woodward intensifies his snooping and opens a hornet's nest of suspicious circumstances and top political names.

Providing a fascinating backdrop to their probing is the newspaper itself (the huge newsroom is supposed to be an exact replica of the Washington Post newsroom) where the first efforts of Woodward and Bernstein to get full backing from their editors occasionally becomes as grueling as the actual fact-finding.

Director Alan J. Pakula has overlaid the film with a measured but relentless tension that makes an essentially actionless story into a first-rate thriller, all the more true to life because Watergate left few American unscathed.

The film never yields to the easy temptation to make Nixon and his staff into targets of scorn; occasional actual news clips provide enough irony on their own.

Jason Robards stands out as the Post's chief editor Ben Bradlee, who stuck by his reporters' story when no other paper would touch it. Hal Holbrook is the shadowy informant "Deep Throat."

PRINCE
Murder by Death. This parody of the detective genre by Neil Simon features a bumper crop of celebrated sleuths invited to a Victorian country manor to solve a murder yet to be committed. They range from an inscrutable Oriental to a dapper Belgian.

The all-star cast includes Truman Capote, James Coco, Peter Falk, Alec Guinness, Elsa Lanchester, David Niven, Peter Sellers, Maggie Smith and Nancy Walker.

ERIC LAWRENCEVILLE
Lagan's Run. Adventure epic about a youth-oriented society in the 23rd century where the lifespan is set at 30 years. Stars Michael York and Peter Ustinov.

The greatest demand for protein comes during the periods of most rapid growth. During the first year of life, the protein requirement per kilogram of body weight is greater than at any other time. One must not forget, however, the maintenance requirement for protein which persists through life. When one ceases to grow, there is still a need for protein to repair or replace tissues. Meat, fish, poultry, and eggs are among the best primary sources of proteins. But soy beans and dried beans, peas, and nuts are good plant sources of protein.

floribunda roses as a hedge to discourage deer) from catalogues. He begins his garden in January by starting tomato and pepper seeds under lights in his basement. In March, he spreads the contents of the large compost pile that has been accumulating for the past year over the garden along with lime and fertilizer and hires someone to come in and rototill the whole thing for $25.

Some Sprays Used. Mr. Sheehan says his garden is organic in that he re-cycles everything, but he is not anti-spray. When the bugs come, he uses Sevin and stays away from isotox and the chlor-danes, which stay in the soil too long. He watches the Ph of the soil carefully, taking soil samples to his lab for analysis and then applies lime or aluminum sulfite in mathematically correct quantities.

Mr. Sheehan has had help each weekend from his wife's father, John Ziegler, a retired accountant with his own firm in California and who came in Rossmore to be near the family. A former farmer himself, Mr. Ziegler enjoys weeding and cultivating, and in return takes home a share of the fruits of this particular bit of land.

Wagon Train West

Wagon Train West
by W. H. Burgess

The daring and magnitude of the great western movement along the Oregon Trail appear vividly in this book. Burgess, writing with skill and authority, tells the story of the pioneers who braved the hardships of the trail to reach the great westward horizons.

When George Boone and his Americans began the Oregon Trail, they were the first of many wagon trains to cross the great westward horizons. The trail was a dangerous and difficult journey, but the pioneers who braved the hardships of the trail to reach the great westward horizons.

WHAT'S HAPPENING

On Campus This Summer. Student-conducted tours of the campus, films and plays at Theatre Intime, chamber concerts and exhibits are among the activities of general interest to the Princeton community taking place this summer on the Princeton University campus.

A variety of special educational programs, conferences, and meetings will attract nearly 10,000 young people and adults from this country and abroad to the campus during July and August.

Information about these activities and special events, as well as the visiting hours for the Art Museum, the University Natural History Museum in Guyot Hall, Prospect Gardens and Firestone Library, are posted on the main bulletin board in front of Stanhope Hall. Information may also be obtained at the Orange Key Guide Service office in Stanhope Hall (452-3603).

As an aid to university visitors, maps of the campus have been posted near Nassau Hall and at the Woodrow Wilson School Plaza, giving information about campus buildings and other matters. This includes information about the availability of university facilities during the summer months.

As in recent summers, the university campus remains open to visitors within certain limits. No one is permitted to sit or congregate on the lawns in the proximity of Nassau Hall and Firestone Library after 8:30 p.m. from mid-June until after Labor Day. Notices have been posted at the Woodrow Wilson School Plaza, off Washington Road, to remind campus visitors that the reflecting pool is neither a wading nor a swimming pool. University buildings near the pool are in use throughout the summer for student and faculty research, and admittance to the buildings is limited to university-guided tours or to those on official university business.

POST 76 FIGHTS BACK

In Legion Play, Princeton Post 76 managed to snap its three-game losing streak last week, but only just barely as it tied Lawrence Post 414, 3-3, and eked out a 7-6 victory over Hopewell Post 339. Both games were called because of darkness. As a result, its record in the Mercer County Legion League is 2-3-1 under rookie manager Bob Bruschi.

Post 76's home debut was hardly one to remember as sloppy fielding and sloppy pitching enabled Lawrence to gain a 3-3 tie in a game called after seven innings. Dana Nini scattered four hits, but experienced trouble in finding the plate as he gave up six walks and hit one batter.

Hopewell filled the bases in the sixth, scored one run but had the tying run erased on a perfect throw to the plate by Soderman. Hurlburt retired the next batter on a pop before the game was called.

ELKS ARE 4-0

In Little League, The Elks stayed unbeaten in the Princeton Youth Baseball Association Little League last week, stopping previously unbeaten Post 76 for sole control of first place.

Paul Krassnoff hurled a two-hitter, striking out 11, to give the Elks an 8-2 victory over the Eagles. Krassnoff also contributed two hits, one a homer, and got an offensive assist from Reid Horovitz, who had three hits, including a double and triple. Paul Keaney homered and doubled for both hits for the losers.

The Elks then ran their streak to four games with a 7-5 victory over Roma Eterna. Horovitz got the win, striking out 11. Krassnoff and Eric Larsen each hit triples to provide support at the plate. Peter Hatfield paced the losers with two hits.

Engine Co. 1 rebounded from a 0-2 start with two wins. It routed Roma Eterna, 30-7, behind pitcher Larry Fletcher who struck out 13 and aided his own cause with three hits including a triple and a home run. More support came from Jeff Spikes, who had a triple and home run; P.J. Young, who doubled for one of his two hits, and Peter Versfeld, who had three hits. Stephen Fletcher had two hits, one a triple, for Roma Eterna.

In a game completed in less than an hour, pitcher Peter Versfeld out-dueled PIASC's Kevin Phox as he pitched a one-hitter, striking out 13 en route to a 1-0 win. Phox pitched brilliantly for the losers, giving up just two hits while striking out 10. Judd Petrone's triple was followed by Jeff Spikes' single to give No. 1 all the lead it needed. Ken Varvel had the lone PIASC hit.

Post 76 and the Eagles both split their two games last week. Post 76 ran its win streak to three with a 12-5 victory over Engine Co. 3 as Clark Lippincott got the win in relief of Terry Phox, who had two hits. Mickey Carnavale, three hits, and Doug Thompson, two-run single, supplied the big hits for Post 76. Scott Waterman banged two triples and Lamont Fletcher hit a double and triple to lead the losers.

Post 76 suffered its first loss of the season, however, in its next start, as it was out-slugged by the Eagles, 14-10. Chris Hunninghake picked up the win in relief of Muskie

I
YOU
KNOW

Brought to you
By John Bernard

Want some good advice to give to youngsters who are learning to play baseball? ... Joe McCarthy, who managed the Yankees to eight pennants in the 1930s and 1940s, once listed these proverbs as important for anyone who wants to be a good ball player ... (1) Take your bat off your shoulder if you want to become a .300 hitter ... (2) Outfielders who throw the ball behind the runner lock the barn after the horse is gone ... (3) When you start to slide, slide; he who changes his mind may change a good leg for a broken leg ... (4) Don't alibi on the bad hops; anybody can stop the good ones ... (5) Look ahead, not backwards, on the bases ... (6) Don't try to throw the ball before you catch it ... (7) Nobody ever became a good ball player by walking after the ball ... (8) Don't find too many faults with the umpire; you can't expect him to be as perfect as you are.

Did you ever hear of a boxing match being won without a single blow from either man? ... It happened in a bout in 1943 at Bristol, England between Louis Fettaers and Carmine Milone ... At the bell starting the first round, Milone rushed toward Fettaers so fast that he lost his balance, fell, struck his head on the ring post, was knocked unconscious and counted out by the referee!

I bet you didn't know ... that insurance agents are only as good as their claims service. Our claim service is excellent.

SURPRISE!

Princeton Newcomers Are 1-2. While Princeton softball is entering its third week of competition, there are two Princeton-based teams which have been playing for over six weeks. And both are in a first place tie in a highly-competitive league that has been dominated through the years by Trenton area ball players.

In the Mercer County's Major League are two old Princeton rivals, Ivy Inn and Staats E. & G. Behind fine play of such players as Wes Cawley, Bill Staats, Tom Devito and others, the Staats team finished last season its first, with a credible 18-9 record and a second place finish.

Ivy Inn followed the same path south after winning the Princeton Championships last year. Through good coaching, timely hitting and excellent defense, Ivy has surpassed Staats' record of last year, now owning a 10-2 record.

In their first confrontation, Ivy erased a five run first inning deficit to hand Staats its first loss of the year, 12-10. Since that game, Staats has dropped a decision to last year's champion, Zips Steak House.

Ivy's success on offense is due to better than .500 hitting by George McVaugh, Bob Mucciarelli, Rich Voltz, Tony Boccanfuso, Bruce Sandvick, and Walt Brower. Defensively, Bill McQuade's fine play at shortstop and Tony Pirone's pitching have helped limit the opposition to less than four runs per game while averaging better than 11 runs a game.

Staats had jumped off to a 9-0 record this year. Bolstered by the acquisition of Bill Povio, Dave Alton and Jay Stoutenburg, Staats has been averaging better than 12 runs a game while giving up an average of five. One half of Staats' starting line-up is hitting over .500 while infielder Wes Cawley and the entire Staats outfield has been turning in fine performances on the field.

Games are played at Central Park on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings with rain-outs made up on Sundays.

FINALS THIS WEEKEND

In Women's Singles. The final rounds of the annual women's singles tennis tournament are scheduled for the this weekend. Playing times have been posted at the University courts and the public is invited.

TIGER TEAMS AT .683

For Spring Season. Princeton University men's and women's varsity athletic teams produced another outstanding record during the spring sports season. The seven men's varsity teams recorded 61 victories, 36 losses and one tie for a winning percentage of .628, and were 29-14 in Ivy competition for a mark of .674.

Princeton's two freshman teams -- heavyweight and lightweight crew -- had an overall mark of 12-3 for an .800 percentage, while the seven junior varsity teams came through with a 43-17 record and a .717 percentage.

On the women's side, three varsity teams were 19-9-1 for a .672 mark, and had a 6-3-1 record against Ivy foes. The three junior varsity teams compiled a 15-4 record and a winning percentage of .789.

Overall, the Princeton spring sports record was 150 wins, 69 losses and two ties for a winning percentage of .683.

Men's highlights included a third straight Eastern Intercollegiate Tennis Association title (tie with Harvard), the Ivy League golf championship, an appearance in the ECAC Middle Atlantic Baseball Playoffs and a second place showing in the IRA Regatta at Syracuse by the heavyweight crew.

On the women's side, a fourth straight Middle States title was won, as was a third straight Seven Sisters crown by the women's varsity tennis team.

ENTRIES DUE FRIDAY

For Boys' Tennis Tournament. Entries for the annual Princeton Boys' Open Tennis Tournament, a sanctioned Middle States Tennis Association tournament for boys 18, 16, and 14 and under, are due Friday. Registered entrants should report to the Princeton University Church Courts on Monday.

The Community Tennis Program office at 71 University Place has entry blanks and information for both the singles and doubles events. The tournament is under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stabler, 944 Stuart Road, to whom the entries must be sent. Housing for those who must travel more than 50 miles can be arranged by calling the Tennis Office (924-4343) between 9 and 5 weekdays.

8 in Quarter-Finals in Springdale Golf

Eight members of Springdale Golf Club each won a pair of matches last weekend to reach the quarter-finals of the President's Cup tournament. After two more elimination rounds this Saturday and Sunday, the surviving pair will meet in an 18-hole championship final on Saturday, July 3.

The eight double winners and their pairings this Saturday: Dick Schranz vs. Lyle Fitch, Dick Querns vs. Kline Fulmer, Harold Crane vs. Bill Turgeon and Jack Mudge vs. Steve Fillo. Play is based on full handicaps for each entrant.

Schranz reached the quarter-finals by defeating Stu Wilson, 6 and 5, and Dick Leibler, 3 and 1, after Leibler had eliminated Dave Savage, 2 and 1. Fitch was a 2-and-1 victor over Ross Shrader and a 5-and-4 winner over Arne Booth, the latter winning Saturday from Bob Shillaber, 2up.

Querns eliminated Joe Masick, 3 and 2, and then won from Jim Litvack after Litvack had triumphed over Dan Hall, 7 and 6. Fulmer topped Bob Cronin 4 and 3, and Fred Short, 2 and 1. Short taking his first-round match from Fritz Blaicher, 2 and 1.

Crane won Saturday from Don Drescher, 5 and 3, and the next day from Jack Sweeney, 3 and 1. Sweeney having eliminated Wilbur Young, 6 and 5. Turgeon defeated Wendell Breithaupt, 5 and 4, and then Fred Gallagher, 2 and 1, after Gallagher edged Ken Dawes, on the 18th green.

Mudge won, 5 and 4, from Frank Crecca and 3 and 2 from Dick Thompson, the latter having eliminated Bob Clancy, 3 and 2. Fillo won, 5 and 4, from Bob Forrey and 2 and 1 over Bill Millman. Millman took his first-round match from Sol Davidson, 4 and 3.

single and a sacrifice fly.

In a losing effort to Hamilton PA L at Mercer County Park, Princeton was plagued by bases on balls and came out on the short end of a 6-3 score. Miller continued his long ball string with a triple to the fence and Tom Ferguson had two hits, including a double.

Last Thursday night at Mercer County Park, Princeton trounced West Windsor, 12-6. Robertson won his second game of the season and Miller had another extra base hit, doubling to left and driving in a run in the third inning. Gumbiner scored three runs, reaching first on a single and two bases on balls.

Mark Lovering, Mark Taylor, Ferguson and Robertson also hit safely in the winning effort.

Princeton is attempting to repeat last year's championship performance and Coach, Steve Crandall, former Princeton University pitcher, now attending the University of Virginia Law School, feels that with a little more pitching depth, he can repeat this summer.

SEASON UNDER WAY

For Babe Ruth League. The Babe Ruth division of the Princeton Youth Baseball League has begun its season and after one week, Princeton Bank and Trust is on top with a 2-0 record.

Both Tiger Garage and PBA split their first two games, while LaVake lost its first two.

Keith Phox of PB&T tossed a no-hitter against LaVake and Carl Nazzaro got credit for the bank's second win over Tiger Garage. Al Kandell, Tim Hunt and Mike Nosal are all batting .500 or over for Tiger after two games.

League games are played every Monday and Wednesday at the Princeton High School field and Princeton University's Strubing Field. Bob Cronin is the league director.

LAPIDUS IS 1-1

In Summer Tennis. Jay Lapidus, Princeton's high school All-American tennis player, is 1-1 after his first two summer tournaments.

In his first tournament, he won the Frosty Hollow Men's Invitational held in Pennsylvania by defeating Jon Kraut of Trenton in three sets. From a field of 64, Lapidus had reached the final round without the loss of a single set.

In the U.S. Interscholastic Tennis Championships held at Duke University, Lapidus, unseeded, reached the semi-finals where he was eliminated in a three-hour match by Jim Hodges, 6-4, 5-7, 6-4. Hodges, nationally ranked no. 10 last year, then went on to win the tournament in straight sets.

TWO ARE TIED

In Adult League, Center Sports and Conte's are the only undefeated teams in the Princeton Recreation Adult Softball League after two weeks of play with 4-0 records.

Trailing 4-1, Center Sports fought back to edge C. Sq. C., 6-5. Winning pitcher Bill Bartolino homered to help his cause. Later in the week, Center defeated Grover Taxi, 3-2, as Jack Petrone's two-run homer provided the margin of victory.

Conte's pounded out 54 hits in wins over Grover Taxi, 16-4, and P.M.C., 23-7. Don Witt and John Pesce each had four-for-four nights in the Grover contest; against P.M.C., Pesce and Doug Heil combined for 10 hits. Jim Reese and Dnn Witt each collected four hits. Heil also blasted two homers, as did Jerry Scarborough who had seven runs batted in.

In other action, Ivy Inn defeated Andy's, 8-3, and P.M.C., 22-2. Doug Watson collected three hits, including a homer, in the Andy's game. Mert Probasco's four hits lead Ivy's attack against P.M.C.
